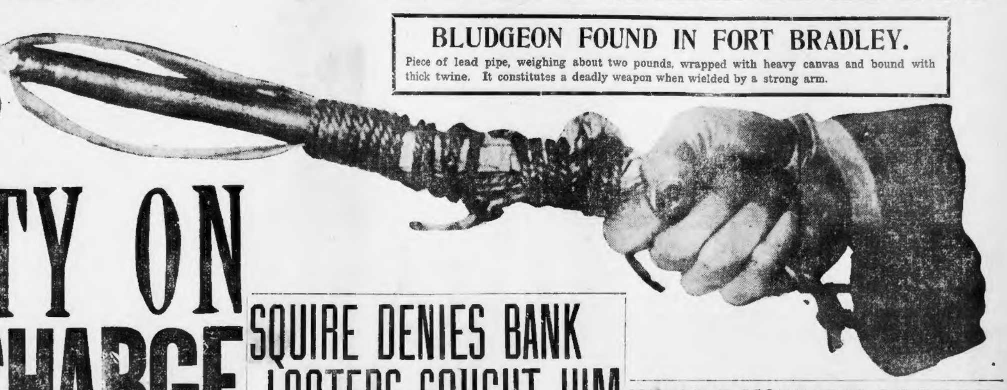
STRIKE BREAKERS FINED 1 GUILTY ON THEFT CHARGE



BLUDGEON FOUND IN FORT BRADLEY.

Piece of lead pipe, weighing about two pounds, wrapped with heavy canvas and bound with thick twine. It constitutes a deadly weapon when wielded by a strong arm.

Carrying Concealed Weapons Charged Against Bradley's Men, Two Plead Guilty, Others Convicted on Hearings—One Man Charged With Larceny.

Six strike-breakers were arraigned in the several District Courts to-day on complaints ranging from larceny to carrying concealed weapons.

Two of them promptly pleaded guilty. Counsel secured by Captain Bradley, chief of the imported strike-breakers, defended the others, some of whom were found guilty after short hearings.

One more firm is affected by the teamsters' strike to-day and two other large concerns will have strikes against them ordered if they do not live up to the agreement made with the union, it is asserted. The question of a general strike among all Boston teamsters was seriously discussed at last night's mass meeting of the union.

The men employed by the Snow Forwarding Company have been locked out because the men refused to do work for some of the 'struck' concerns, the union leaders say. Mr. Snow employed nine union men and they were paid off Saturday.

Breaker's Victim Dying.

In the City Hospital, Michael J. Cunningham, the young teamster who was shot in the back last Wednesday while trying to prevent trouble, is slowly dying. His mother and his fiancee, Miss Annie Richardson, arrived at the hospital early today in a state of almost complete collapse because of the announcement made in a morning paper that the young man was dead. While there is no hope for Cunningham's life, his remarkable strength and vitality have kept him alive much longer than the surgeons ever hoped for.

Judge Fallon had three of the strike-breakers before him in the South Boston District Court to-day. All were New Yorkers. John L. Johnson was charged with the larceny of a pair of rubbers from freight house No. 2 of the New Haven road. He was fined $5.

Joseph Palmer pleaded guilty to the charge that he jumped from his team and struck an unknown man in the face. He was fined $10. William A. Sneider was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon, a heavy club, and his case was placed on file.

Lawyer's Pointed Questions.

In the case of Johnson, Attorney James J. Feeley, secured by Captain Bradley, made strong endeavors to ascertain from a witness whether or not the freight handlers and freight clerks were apt to go out in sympathy with the teamsters. He sharply questioned Michael J. Brennan, assistant freight clerk at New Haven house No. 2.

Brennan said that he heard the sound of a box being broken open and later saw Johnson come from behind a pile of freight with the pair of rubbers in his hand. He asked Johnson what he was going to do and Johnson said he had found them on the floor.

Lawyer Feeley asked Brennan: "Don't you men around the freight housese make it as uncomfortable as possible for these non-union teamsters?" "No, sir," Brennan answered.

"Is it not true that the freight handlers

'HIGGINS DROVE OUT THE BOSS'

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, April 29.—In addressing a smoker of the Higgins Democratic Club, James A. Williams declared that Governor Higins has broken the machine and driven the "Boss" Brayton into political oblivion.

"His continuance in the Governor's chair is insured," he said, "by his dignified course in the midst of the turmoil and bitterness of the legislative session, just ended. This man of destiny has kept his promise to the people."

Mr. Williams bitterly arraigned the Republican party and its bosses for their stand-pat policy.

STEAMER LOST, CREW PERISHES

RIO JANEIRO, April 29.—It is reported that the British steamer Brownhill, bound for Rio de Janeiro, was destroyed by fire during her voyage. The crew perished.

THE WEATHER.

Showery and somewhat warmer to-night. Tuesday partly cloudy and warmer. Light easterly winds, becoming south to west by Tuesday.

High tide—11:49 a. m.; 12:12 p. m.

Sun—Rises 4:43; sets 6:40.

Moon—Rises 8:30 p. m.

SPREE COSTS HIM LEGACY

Sentenced to three months in the House of Correction after being convicted upon the charge of drunkenness by Judge Emery in the Dedham District Court to-day, Edward J. Daly of Dedham will also forfeit $300 which was left to him by his father, who died March 15, with the provision that he would not get intoxicated for six months.

The prisoner's brother and sister were to decide whether Edward lived up to the provisions of the will, and if he did he was to receive $100 at the end of six months and the other $200 at the end of the year.

SCHMITZ MAY CONFESS GRAFT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—The latest candidate for immunity is Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz. Through trusted representatives the mayor has made a proposal to the graft prosecutors, which is now under consideration. Schmitz, it is said, has offered to resign his office of mayor of San Francisco, to make a full confession to the grand jury of his knowledge of municipal affairs, and to join the ranks of the reformers.

WORCESTER AIDS GARMENT WORKERS

WORCESTER, April 29.—Six hundred Hebrews and sympathizers in Horticultural Hall last night gave $125 to afford relief to the striking members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, A. F. of L., of Boston. Jacob Goldstein and Charles Jacobson, two of the Boston strike leaders, addressed the meeting.

SQUIRE DENIES BANK LOOTERS SOUGHT HIM

"HAVEN'T SEEN DENNETT IN YEAR; NEVER MENTIONED QUINCY AS COUNSEL," HE SAYS.

In a statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN, Frank O. Squire, prominent Boston business man and son of the late John P. Squire, the millionaire pork-packer and founder of the firm of John P. Squire & Company, emphatically denies that he suggested to Oliver M. Dennett, who with William O. Douglass, is under arrest in New York charged with stealing $800,000 in bonds and cash from the Trust Company of America, of New York, that he engage ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy of Boston as counsel.

He declares that he has not seen Dennett for a year and he says he cannot understand the statement of Mr. Quincy to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Saturday night, that Dennett had told him that Mr. Squire suggested that he (Quincy) be retained as counsel by the bank looters.

"Never Mentioned Quincy."

"I have not been in New York for a year, and I have not seen Oliver M. Dennett during that time," Mr. Squire says. My dealings with Dennett date back five years ago, and no matters connected with John P. Squire & Co. have brought me into relations with him within a year. I never mentioned the name of Josiah Quincy to Dennett at any time, in any way, shape or manner. I have always looked upon Mr. Quincy as a politician and as a lawyer whose interests were in real estate matters. I had never thought of him as a general practicing lawyer at all.

"All I have to say about this case is that I have no knowledge whatever of Douglass or Dennett or their association in connection with this case of the trust company."

Mr. Quincy and a prominent Boston banker who had business dealings with Mr. Squire when he failed some months ago with liabilities of over $80,000, and when Mr. Squire, as one of the trustees of the John P. Squire & Co. business was interested in that concern's financial troubles, which involved many banking institutions and seriously crippled some of them, were responsible for the statement that Mr. Squire and another Massachusetts business man had a conference with Dennett in New York before Mr. Quincy's name was dragged into the scandal over the bond theft.

Place Thefts at $800,000 Now.

At least $800,000 worth of bonds is the amount now named as the loot of Trust Company of America by O. M. Dennett and W. O. Douglass, according to dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

When Mr. Quincy was told of Mr. Squire's denial he said: "I am glad that Officer John Kelleher, from day duty on the Cambridge street route to night duty on Cambridge Field.

Officer Edward Cordon, from reserve duty to the Bottle House route.

Officer Harry Davis, from Station No. 3 to the Third street route. Officer Michael McMahon, from the station route to the railroad crossing route.

Officers John Kelly and Lawrence Dempsey, from the Bottle House district to the railroad crossing route.

These shifts go into effect immediately.

NEWSBOYS ASK BIGGER PLOT FOR BASEBALL

Pass Resolutions to Present to Mayor Requesting New Allotment.

Efforts are being made by the Newsboys' Union and other organizations to have more space set apart on Boston Common for ball playing. The space now allotted is insufficient, and the Newsboys' Union will ask Mayor Fitzgerald to arrange things so that the West End boys and their friends can use a plot near the corner of Charles street and Beacon street.

The Newsboys' Union at its meeting yesterday adopted these resolutions:

"Whereas, the space allotted for playground is the only baseball field in the city proper which is at all sufficient to the needs and uses of the North, West and a greater part of the South Ends, and

"Whereas, the space allotted for playground purposes is inadequate for the demands of the great number of men and boys who need and desire outdoor exercise, and

"Whereas, there is a large space of available ground which could be used for such purposes; therefore,

"Be it resolved that the Boston Newsboys' Union request His Honor the Mayor to grant our request by enlarging the present playground."

A committee consisting of Nathan S. Solekson (chairman), Charles Frasca and Warren Dailey was appointed to call on the Mayor with these resolutions.

YOUNG WOMEN ACCUSE YOUTH AS ASSAILANT

POLICE BELIEVE ARREST SOLVES MYSTERY OF ROSLINDALE AND HYDE PARK HOLD-UPS.

Charged with having attacked two young women, John W. A. K. Koelsch, sixteen years old, was to-day held in bonds of $300 to appear for arraignment in the Jamaica Plain Court Saturday.

At that time two young women and several policemen will testify against him.

Confronted by Miss Anna Reynolds, twenty years of age, of No. 8 Perkins street, Roslindale, and Miss Marie Tappan, twenty-two years of age, of No. 23 Wood avenue, Hyde Park, the police declare that the young man broke down and confessed, but not until after both young women had identified him as their assailant.

Told Similiar Stories.

Koelsch was arrested by the police on suspicion of having attacked Miss Tappan. On account of the similarity of the attacks on the two young women Miss Reynolds faced him at the same time that Miss Tappan did, and the police claim that the results justified the arrest which has caused such a sensation.

John Koelsch, father of the accused boy, at once furnished bail in the sum of $300.

Miss Reynolds was attacked on the evening of December 18 when she had alighted from a Hyde Park car near Canterbury and Perkins streets.

Refused Money and Watch.

She was attacked by a man who approached from behind and who threw her to the ground and placed his hand over her mouth. She freed herself and demanded her pocketbook, and the man, she says, lighted matches, found and returned the purse to her.

On Saturday the police of Hyde Park asked the assistance of the Jamaica Plain police to help find the man who had attacked Miss Tappan on Wood avenue. She told much the same story of the methods of her assailant as that told by Miss Reynolds, and that the man had refused to accept her gold watch and chain. She finally freed herself and ran to Ashland street.

BARONESS ON TRIAL FOR LIFE VERY SCORNFUL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Cheerful and smiling, Baroness Anisla de Massey, accused of the murder of Merchant Gustav Simon, tripped lightly into the courtroom behind Deputy Sheriff Bannon to-day. After shaking hands cordially with her counsel and the representatives of the French Republic, who have been constantly at her side since the trial began, she glanced toward the witness chair.

There Miss Cecilia Guggenheim, an employe in the millinery shop of Soloman Schiller of Broadway, was just taking her seat. The little Frenchwoman's countenance underwent a complete change in an instant. Her lips curled disdainfully, and her eyes shot a malignant look at the young woman, who on Saturday gave most damaging testimony against her.

Then with a slight shrug of her shoulders, as if to dismiss her thoughts, she turned and began chatting gaily with Mr. Le Barbier, her big counsel.

Miss Guggenheim was conducted over a rough road of cross-examination by Mr. Le Barbier. She was made to admit that she did not know whether the defendant wore a hat or not. She swore she was about six feet from Madame De Massey when Otto Eckissel interrupted her coming down the stairs after the shooting.

FATAL RIOT IN OHIO SHIP STRIKE

CLEVELAND, O., April 29.—Blood was shed yesterday in the trouble between the American Shipbuilding Company and its striking employes, when 300 men and women waited at the gates for the non-union men to leave. A fight ensued, in which several men were injured, one perhaps fatally.

PURSUERS IN AUTO CHASE HORSE THIEF

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 29.—The farmers along the road from Woonsocket to this city were last night roused from their tranquil slumbers by the wild shouts in a race between a bold young horse thief driving a $500 equine beauty and a pursuing auto, its searchlights flashing down the dark lanes.

The daring bandit, who is known in Woonsocket, had taken the valuable horse and carriage from a stable there at about 8:30 p. m. The robbery reported, a policeman, the chauffeur and Dr. J. F. Gilbert, the owner of the horse, leaped into the auto, put on full power and tore after the thief.

The robber had a good start and knew the roads well. He plied the whip liberally, and the speedy animal flew over the highways holding the lead over the pursuers.

Turning into side roads and doubling on his trail, the thief eluded his chasers, beat them into Pawtucket, and was seen in this city about midnight. He was not captured, and was last heard from driving at a rapid pace back toward Pawtucket.

MITCHELL BRAVES OPERATION TO-DAY

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., April 29.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, arrived here from Chicago to-day and was at once removed to St. Margaret's Hospital. Physicians are to operate on his [illegible]. No serious results are anticipated, but Mr. Mitchell may be confined to the hospital for three or four weeks.

WOMEN RUSH INTO FIRE TO SAVE CHILDREN

Mother and Neighbor Bear Three Unconscious Little Ones from Flames.

BOTH NEARLY OVERCOME

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, April 29.—Risking their lives and groping their way up a smoke-filled hall and into a room full of flames, escaping illuminating gas and dense clouds of smoke, Mrs. Mary A. White of No. 21 Aetna street to-day rescued her one-year-old daughter Mabel, unconscious, while a neighbor, Mrs. Frank Daly, followed her and carried out Evelyn, aged seven, and Wilson, aged four, also unconscious.

The fire started at about 9:10 o'clock to-day in a closet on the second floor of the house leading from the room where the three children were sleeping. Mrs. White did not discover it until she left her work in the kitchen and started upstairs to awaken her children. Then she smelled the smoke.

Mother Gives Alarm.

Panic stricken for a moment the horrified mother dashed down the stairs and ran to the front door of her house, shrieking "Fire! Fire! Help!" at the top of her voice.

A lad, a pupil of the Worcester Academy, directly opposite the house, ran to the box and sent in a fire alarm. Mrs. Daly, who keeps a small store next door to the White residence, heard Mrs. White's screams and ran to her assistance.

Dash Through Flames.

Up the stairs both the women dashed, although the whole house was filled with smoke and the children's room showed red tongues of flame leaping through the dense fumes, which were also heavily laden with escaping gas.

Feeling their way to the little beds the women grasped up the children and staggered, almost overcome themselves, downstairs to the front door. Here the children were soon revived and taken into Mrs. Daly's home. The fire department soon extinguished the fire, which Deputy Chief Avery thinks must have been started by a match which Mrs. White may have flung down as she was looking in the closet for clothing. The damage was about $250.

TO CROSS OCEAN IN NIGHT; SKY WARSHIPS, TOO

Inventor Bell Predicts Airships Will Revolutionize Transportation and Warfare.

LONDON, April 29.—Dr. Alexander G. Bell declares that it is only a question of a brief period when the progress of aerial navigation will make it possible to have dinner in America and breakfast the next morning in Europe.

"I am confident that it will not be long before flying machines will be everywhere. The developments of the next few months will be unprecedented, but the most interesting point is that only very few know how near America is right now to solving a question which will revolutionize warfare throughout the world—I mean the construction of a practical aerial battleship.

"I hope to be able to add much to what is known of aerial flights by experimetns at Cape Breton Island this Summer. My problem this year will be to propel my kites with a specially constructed engine of 15 horse-power, weighing 120 pounds.

"Even a bird has to learn to fly, and, as with the bird, one of the first considerations is safety, so that man must learn to go slow before he goes fast."

MISS REED HAS NEW QUARREL

Special Cable to Boston American.

PARIS, April 29.—Miss Fanny Reed, sister of the late Mrs. Paran Stevens of New York, whose husband kept a famous Boston hotel, and aunt of Mrs. Arthur Paget, has once more a quarrel on her hands. These "affaires Reed" would make a long list. The latest "affaire" is the outcome of a long standing personal antagonism between Miss Reed and the Countess De St. Maurice. The Count is a journalist, and Miss Reed has intimated that she did not believe the title was genuine.

The Count's retaliation was an article in the Gil Blas in which it was declared that Miss Reed's musicales were for the purpose of exploiting Mary Garden, who is to sing in New York later.

HAIR BURNED OFF PUTTING OUT FIRE

James A. Smith, a lodger in the apartments of Mrs. Margaret Murray, No. 3 Townsend place, lost his moustache, hair and eyebrows while extinguishing a blaze on the floor above, occupied by Mrs. Jennie Chambers, that caused a scare among guests of the Hotel Touraine, nearby, early to-day. The fire was in a pile of rags back of the kitchen stove and caused damage of $200.

Foolish Fire.

In marshy places and in church yards there can often be seen what is commonly called the Foolish Fire, Jack O'Lantern or Will of the Wisp. This is a phosphorescent light, which the superstitious believe haunts certain places to do evil. Therefore it is a danger signal. Nature raises her signal to man of coming danger in the form of disease, which, if not heeded, serious results will surely follow. In 1905, 13,580,000 persons, who saw the danger signal, took Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound and thereby avoided dire consequences. This wonderful remedy gives speedy relief in the following ailments: Rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, constipation, dyspepsia, scrofula, erysipelas, female ailments, kidney, stomach and liver troubles. [illegible] days' treatment, 25c. All druggists.

TYPE OF DANGEROUS STRIKE-BREAKER WITH A REVOLVER

It was a non-union teamster of this class who ran into the Dewey Square Elevated Railway Station flourishing a revolver in the face of the ticket chopper.

FIFTH WEEK SITUATION IN TEAMSTERS' STRIKE

GENERAL teamsters' strike postponed pending this week's developments.

Sunday riots on Atlantic avenue and in Dewey square, in which strike-breakers played conspicuous part.

Joseph White, strike-breaker, twenty-two, arrested on charge of brandishing revolver and threatening lives of several men.

Andrew T. Flynn, strike-breaker, arrested after alleged assault on Policeman W. D. Walsh.

Many women jostled and insulted during rioting near South terminal station.

Police to-day search strike-breakers for concealed weapons.

Michael Cunningham, union teamster shot by strike-breaker Lewis Harris, barely alive at City Hospital.

Scores of strike-breakers ready to desert after pay day this week.

Two more trucking concerns will be "struck" to-day or to-morrow.

Many trade unions vote money to aid striking teamsters.

Additional police reserves on duty to-day.

DRIVERS' STRIKE MAY BE EXTENDED

and clerks refused to deliver freight to the doors for these teamsters?" "No, sir, we never carry freight to the door for anybody. These men are treated like everybody else."

"Is there not a feeling among the freight handlers against these men, and isn't that feeling very strong?" "No, sir, I don't know of any such feeling."

ASKS OF THREATENED STRIKE.

"Don't you know that there is a threatened strike among the freight handlers and clerks in sympathy with the teamsters' strike?" "I don't know anything about it."

"Don't you know that they have threatened a general strike?" "I don't know. I am not an officer of the union and I don't attend all the meetings."

Johnson was asked by the attorney what he intended to do with the rubbers. "I don't know what I was going to do with them," answered the man who was found guilty of larceny.

STRIKE-BREAKERS FINED.

In the Roxbury court Judge Williams refused to allow James McGrath, also a New York strike-breaker, to change his plea of guilty made last Friday on the charge of assault and battery on Michael Cronin of Harrison avenue. McGrath had counsel to-day. He was fined $5.

Joseph White of New York, who was arrested on the South Station elevated while it was charged that he had a revolver in his hand, was held in $200 for a hearing to-morrow. Edward J. Barry, a member of the Governor's council, who was within eight feet of White and saw the revolver, appeared as a witness.

Andrew P. Flynn was arrested at the same time that White was taken into custody and was charged with assault on Patrolman W. D. Walsh, who arrested White. Flynn was also held in $200 and his case continued until to-morrow.

Eleven Firms Now Affected.

Altogether eleven firms are now affected by the strike of teamsters.

Fewer teams were gotten out from the stables to-day than on Saturday. It was said that there had been wholesale desertions from among the strike-breakers on the Zealandia. Only twenty-two men could be raised in New York to start in work here to-day.

The teams and men worked to-day: Hilliard's, 11 teams and 27 men; Johnson, 8 teams and 24 men; Fifield, Richardson & Co., 11 teams and 23 men; Flanders & Co., 15 teams and 25 men; Boston Forwarding & Transfer Company, 11 teams and 23 men; Presbey, two teams and six men; Hilliard's, Cambridge, one team and three men; Annable, five teams and 12 men. Tutein, 18 teams and 30 men.

A meeting of delegates from the affiliated organizations of the Boston Central Labor Union will be held in Wells Memorial Hall to-night to take action on the strike and provide means of assistance to the teamsters.

"Our men are keeping aloof from these street riots. They are following our instructions to the letter," declared Business Agent Daniel J. Tobin, to-day. "We are waging our campaign for justice very quietly. We are not participating in this street warfare. Only irresponsible sympathizers are to blame."

To-day will see a general round-up of all strike-breakers carrying concealed weapons. Policemen have been instructed that any man under suspicion of keeping a revolver secreted in his clothes shall be promptly searched. If a gun is found on the suspect, his arrest will follow. The police, it is said, are determined to prevent any more shooting affrays.

Sunday Rioting.

Thousands of people witnessed the trouble around the South Station. It began after the Sunday crowd of sightseers followed a batch of strike-breakers from the wharf where the Zealandia is moored, to Dewey square. The flashing of revolvers on the part of the "breakers" caused a panic. The police had their hands full, and Policeman Walsh bore the brunt of the fighting in his endeavor to arrest the "breakers" with revolvers. The reserves of Station 6 were called out to disperse the angry crowd.

More desertions from the "breakers'" ranks are reported to-day. Twelve men, disgusted with their treatment by the Employers' Association agents, went to union headquarters and reported for aid. They say that scores of desertions will occur this week from the Zealandia just as soon as the men are paid off.

Unions Aid Teamsters.

Many Boston trade unions yesterday voted financial assistance to the striking members of Boston Team Drivers' Union No. 25, urging the union to accept the same, though it had previously declined to do so.

Boston Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 decided to donate $700 to the striking team drivers, to be raised from a 25 cents assessment on each of its members.

Boston Bartenders' Union 77 voted $10 to the teamdrivers and pledged itself to donate further money.

Boston Brewery Workers' Union 29 directed its officers to pay to the order of the officers of Teamdrivers' Union 25 the sum of $100 and empowered them to levy a 25 cents a week assessment on each of the brewery workmen in its jurisdiction if the teamdrivers asked for it.

Twenty other teamdriving unions will make donations this week.

Expect Speedy Victory.

All the influence that it can wield will be this week used by Boston Central Labor Union in aid of the striking team drivers of the city.

Six hundred delegates in attendance at a special meeting of the central delegate body yesterday enthusiastically voted to grant the striking teamsters all the financial and moral assistance desired to win the fight for a slight wage increase and a shorter work day.

All the delegates spoke encouragingly of the outlook and were of the opinion that the strike must be supported for a full victory, even if the contest lasted months.

MARRIAGE 'AD' LED TO WEDDING

WEBSTER, April 29.—A romance that began with answering an advertisement in a matrimonial paper, several weeks ago, has been brought to a happy conclusion at the Church of the Reconciliation, when John A. Azud of Wilsonville and Miss Susan Martin of Pittsburg were married by the Rev. M. E. Mott, pastor of the Church.

Photographs and letters were exchanged in answer to the young woman's advertisement and the wedding soon followed.

ARE DEFYING PURE FOOD LAW

TOPEKA, April 29.—Dr. S. J. Crumbine, secretary of the State Board of Health, announces that he has discovered in use here as a preservative for meats, the manufacturers of which, he asserts, are openly defying the State and Federal pure food laws. The preservative is made in the East, and chemical tests show that it contains charcoal and pure sulphur, which when burned form a sulphur dioxid gas that is absorbed by the meat and has the same effect as borax.

HEAR ENTOMBED MEN'S TAPPING

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 29.—In a statement issued to-day by the Berwind-White Coal Company at Windber, it was stated that the seven men imprisoned in one of the mines on Saturday would probably be rescued to-day. The mine is rapidly being drained of the water which cut off the miners, and it is expected they will soon be reached. Tappings which continue to be heard on the air pipe indicate that some of the men, at least, are still alive.

MOB ASSAILS U. S. LEGATION

SAN SALVADOR, April 29.—Dispatches received to-day apparently confirm the first report of the stoning of the United States and Mexican consulates in Guatemala City.

It is stated a mob of several hundred men and boys, incited by friends of President Cabrera, participated in the riots. Rocks were hurled through the windows of the consulates, it is stated, and mud was thrown on the walls. Insulting cries against the two governments were shouted by the rioters. So far as known nobody was injured. That the outbreak will lead to somewhat serious results seems certain.

TIMBER FAMINE IS PREDICTED

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Every person in the United States is using over six times wood as he would if he were in Europe. The country, as a whole, consumes every year between three and four times more wood than all of the forests of the United States grow in the meantime.

These statements are made in a lengthy statement on the lumber crop issued to-day by the forestry service of the department of agriculture. A timber famine is predicted unless a more economic use of lumber is inaugurated and government control is instituted to increase the growth rate of the forest lands.

REPORT 7 DEAD BY CLOUDBURST

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 29.—Seven people are reported dead as the result of a cloudburst early to-day at Capital Hill, a suburb.

The towns of Valley View and Hemming were practically destroyed by a tornado which swept over northern Texas. A cotton mill at Celeste was damaged to the extent of $25,000.

MEASLES AT GROTON SCHOOL.

GROTON, April 29.—Two cases of measles at the Groton School and five cases of scarlet fever at Lawrence Academy have aroused the local Board of Health to action. Kermit Roosevelt is still immune.

EMMA EAMES OFF TO TEXAS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Mme. Eames was not among the returning members of the Metropolitan opera company, which reached New York to-day after a successful Western tour. Mme. Eames, who a few days ago was awarded a decree of divorce from Julian Story, her artist husband, is on her way to oFrt Worth, Texas, where she begins a concert tour.

Mme. Fremstedt, a member of the company, has signed a contract to sing Salome in the reproduction of the forbidden opera in Paris this Summer.

Most of the members of the company will sail within two weeks for Europe, not to return until next season. Miss Geraldine Farrar, the new prima donna, made as great an impression in the West as she did here. She will study in Italy this Summer.

PRESIDENT RETURNS FROM JAMESTOWN

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Returning from the visit at the Jamestown exposition and the day's holiday on the James river, President Roosevelt and party yesterday returned here on the cruiser yacht Mayflower. All the party were well.

BUSINESS NOTICE.

STRIKE-BREAKERS' RECORD TO DATE

APRIL 7.—"Lieut." Earle, one of Captain Bradley's chief aids, flourishes a revolver in front of "Fort Bradley" on Albany street. No arrest.

April 14.—Spiros Spirinos, a young Greek, shot from a third-story window of "Fort Bradley." John J. Gaffney of New York, strike-breaker, held.

April 24.—Guard on a Lewis Flanders team fires three shots at a crowd of schoolboys on West Third street. No arrest.

April 24.—Michael J. Cunningham fatally shot on A street, South Boston. Lewis Harris held.

April 24.—Forrest Marston, strike-breaker, employed by Tutein & Co., fined $10 for carrying concealed weapons.

April 27.—Louis Lamphier, a New York strike-breaker, fined $20 for chasing two men with a loaded revolver.

April 27.—William Clark, alias Alfred Underhill, strike-breaker, arrested for carrying concealed weapons.

April 27.—William A. Sneider, New York strike-breaker, arrested for carrying concealed weapons.

April 28.—Joseph White, New York strike-breaker, arrested on the charge of threatening crowd with a loaded revolver.

WATER CHILLY; DECIDED TO LIVE

NEW YORK, April 29.—A man who was convinced that life held no attractions for him is in St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers, imploring the doctors not to let him die, as his attempt at suicide was a mistake.

The police say the man's name is Walker, but they don't know where he lives. He gashed both his wrists with a knife and jumped into the Bronx River from the Old Iron bridge, but swam ashore.

TO BUILD NEW SUEZ CANAL

BERLIN, April 29.—The project of the construction of a second Suez Canal, supported solely by British capital in British hands, has passed beyond the stage of mere speculation. A concession is only a matter of a few weeks.

The Bagdad Railway, which was intended by the German authorities to sap British influence in Asia Minor and as a menace to India, is now relegated, as far as its importance is concerned, to a secondary place. This move on the part of Great Britain is here considered a checkmate to German Asiatic ambitions.

WIRE LET OUT CUPID'S SECRET

NEW YORK, April 29.—"Ask Lillian."

That was a message that came by telegraph to Robert F. Zabriskie, the contractor, at his home, No. 851 East One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, yesterday, after he and his wife had passed the morning in futile inquiry for their sixteen-year-old daughter, Gladys.

Lillian, her elder sister, was called in and she told, in tears, that she was bound under oath to keep the secret until she was released. The telegram released her.

"Gladys and Charlie were married at the 'Little Church Around the Corner' yesterday afternoon, and have gone to Sullivan County to stay until to-morrow," she said.

PASTOR WASHES FEET OF HIS FLOCK

OTTUMWA, Ia., April 29.—The unusual sight of a minister with towel and wash basin washing the feet of his entire congregation of 100 people seated about covered tables laden with bread, meat, soup and water, in accordance with the ceremonies observed at the Lord's supper, was witnessed last evening at the Moore Street Brethren Church.

OCTOGENARIAN IN LOVE WITH JAIL LIFE.

WATERLOO, Ia., April 29.—C. H. Angel, aged eighty, after his first experience of jail life, liked it so well that strategy was resorted to by the police to get him out. He now declares he will return and is restrained only by force.

WOULD GIVE PENSIONS TO ALL MOTHERS

Chicago Professor's Plan to Improve Social Conditions For Women.

WOULD GRADE AMOUNTS

CHICAGO, April 29.—No more will the hard working, conscientious husband feel obliged to turn over his Saturday night's pay envelopes to his wife, if Professor Charles Hueblin of the University of Chicago, has his way.

Not content with delving into the problem of probationary engagements and the general position of women in society, Professor Hueblin has tackled the menace race suicide and the question of a married woman's property rights, grouped them together and reached a joint solution satisfactory to himself. His solution was presented in an address before the Society for Ethical Culture. It consists of a system of pensions for motherhood.

The plan, to which, according to the educator, society in America, sooner or later, will be driven, contemplates the payment to every mother of an income graded, not according to her husband's salary, but according to the number of her children.

Just how the pension is to be paid or who is to pay it, Professor Hueblin does not make clear. Presumably, some branch of the government would attend to it, but that would be a mere matter of detail.

PREFERS JAIL, SCORES LAWYER

CHICAGO, April 29.—Louis A. Gourdain, convicted of using the mails to defraud, actually began to serve his sentence at Joliet to-day. After his conviction Gourdain served four days of his sentence, when his lawyers got him out on a writ of supersedeas, whereupon Gourdain insisted upon returning behind the bars, pleading unsuccessfully with the warden. The unwilling citizen thereupon went to Washington and sought to have the Supreme Court return him to prison by means of mandamus proceedings. The prisoner later will be taken to Fort Leavenworth.

RANCHERS SEEK WIVES BY ADS.

RIVERTON, Wyo., April 29.—A wife hunt is being organized by the band of lonely bachelors who have settled on the homesteads which the government recently opened in the Wind River or Shoshone Indian reservation. They call themselves the Riverton Bachelor Club.

They have inserted in State papers an advertisement for wives, and they will later advertise in papers throughout the country unless they should in the meantime obtain helpmates.

Young women who may desire to correspond with any of these young men with a view of matrimony are requested to address the secretary of the club.

DESERTING SAILORS SWIM FOR LIBERTY

Three sailors attached to the U. S. S. Vermont at the Charlestown Navy Yard, anxious for liberty, jumped into the icy water, Saturday night, and two of them are known to have made the shore after a half-mile swim. They were rescued by a drawtender at the Warren bridge. It is not known what became of the third man. The men are John Loury, J. G. Lawless and E. V. McLea.

MAINE OPENS WAR ON GYPSY MOTHS

Declare $250,000 Suit by "Big Hawley" Daring Plot to

BLACKMAIL HOWARD GOULD

Sensation Caused by Court Action of Famous "Crook" Against New York Millionaire.

A tremendous social sensation has been caused by the $250,000 suit against Howard Gould and his counsel, De Lancey Nicoll, by William C. Woodward, alias "Big Hawley," the notorious international crook, who was released May 11, 1906, from the East Cambridge jail, after serving four years for using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Gould and Nicoll charge that Woodward is guilty of an infamous and amazing plot of blackmail. The plaintiff served a term in Sing Sing for a similar crime against F. W. Bridgeman, a New York society man, now dead, who was accused by "Big Hawley" of attempting to alienate the affections of the latter's pseudo wife.

"Hawley" charges that he was asked to furnish some secret and highly sensational information to Howard Gould in an action which the latter purposed to bring in court.

Howard Gould is now living at the Waldorf, in New York, and his wife has been, since their separation last September, occupying costly apartments at the St. Regis, with an allowance of $20,000 per month from her husband. Neither Mr. or Mrs. Gould will discuss the sensational suit by Big Hawley.

MAKES ASTOUNDING CHARGES.

When Big Hawley was freed from confinement last year it was conditional upon his future blameless life. He then announced that he would lead an upright career, and intended to devote his time and $25,000, if need be, to reforming jails. He started at once writing a book entitled "The Palace Builders," in sections, in which he exposed the fallacies and secret histories of prominent society leaders. One excerpt from the book narrates the wonderful career of "The Forty Famous Adventurers," or "The Forty Thieves." He declares that beautiful and now-famous women were connected with this notorious band of criminals.

He says of these:

"Of the beautiful women who allied themselves with these rovers only a few survive. One of them, the victim of opium, lives with a Chinese gambler in New York's Chinatown; another is married into the nobility, and still another is busily engaged building a palace [illegible] America, little anticipating the [illegible]ial doom about to fall. The lat[illegible]he only one of the organiza[illegible]at broke the oath and turned [illegible]he gang. She will pay the [illegible] It is the surest thing you [illegible]

[illegible]rd Mysteriously Missing.

[illegible] from New York to the BOSTON [illegible]CAN to-day say that Woodward [illegible]riously missing, after reading in [illegible]spapers an account of his long swi[illegible]career, published in connection wi[illegible] Gould suit.

The suit [illegible]e "secret information furnished and [illegible] personal and private services." It has in no manner effected a [illegible]onciliation of Gould and his wife, for[illegible]ly Katherine C. Clemmons, the actress. [illegible]ir friends said to-day that they are [illegible] further apart than at any time since [illegible] separation.

[illegible]elancy Nicoll, personal counsel for G[illegible]ld and named in Woodward's suit as co-defendant, announced to-day that "Big Hawley" would not dare return to New York to prosecute his claim. Mr. Nicoll said it was another bold scheme of the swindler to exact blackmail. Many secrets concerning the suit for a quarter of a million dollars have become known since the papers were served on Mr. Nicoll on Saturday.

He accepted service for himself and Mr. Gould and at once hurried to Garden City, where he remained with Mr. Gould until to-day, when both came into the city.

Family Troubles of Goulds.

The family troubles of the Goulds had become so embarrassing to Mr. Gould that after the final separation last September, Mr. Gould had no contemplation of a reconciliation. Mr. Gould is understood to have been greatly worried by litigation growing out of his wife's dealings with merchants and others.

That he did not propose to be reconciled was indicated when they met accidentally in Delmonico's last Winter and neither spoke to the other.

It was about this time that "Big Hawley" appeared on the scene. He said he had information that would end all of Mr. Gould's woes. Woodward was turned over to Mr. Nicoll. He maintains that he was employed by Mr. Nicoll for Mr. Gould to obtain certain evidence to be used in a contemplated action at court. Mr. Gould asserts that Woodward was not so employed, but that he volunteered certain information which he said was true and which could be used as evidence in a court action, provided it were true.

Detectives were employed and after working on the information given by Woodward they declared it to be without foundation and Woodward was dismissed.

Makes Demand on Gould.

Then appeared the real object of Woodward, who has frequently confessed to his swindling operations and who brags that he has been arrested thirty-seven times. He made a demand on Mr. Gould for pay, in a large sum for his alleged services, threatening a suit and consequent publicity, unless he was paid liberally.

While it was understood that Woodward had no claim in reality, Mr. Gould did not relish undesirable publicity, and, as Woodward's threats meant additional notoriety and the public discussion of his private affairs, it is said the millionaire was in favor of buying Woodward off by the payment of a compromise sum.

To this Mr. Nicoll objected and said the payment of such a claim would be a submission to blackmail and he would not countenance it as Mr. Gould's chief counsel. Thereupon, although Mr. Gould is said to have expressed a desire to settle, Woodward was notified that he would not be paid one penny, and that if he made further demands his whole record, which has been revealed by the sleuths put on the case, would be made public and that his arrest might follow on charges of attempted blackmail.

Woodward did not fear this, as he knew that to do so Mr. Gould would be getting the notoriety he wished to avoid. Still demanding the money, Woodward retained Sheldon & Gates, lawyers, who have been practicing in New York only about six months. Mr. Nicoll and Mr. Gould believe that Woodward's lawyers have been acting in good faith, ignorant of their client's record of crime and believe that his claim is bona fide.

Bare Woodward's Record.

When Woodward first imparted his alleged information to Mr. Gould, the latter, besides employing private detectives, went to his old friend, Inspector McLaughlin who was then at the head of the detective bureau at police headquarters.

Inspector McLaughlin was not long in telling Mr. Gould who Woodward was. He gave him his whole record of crime all over the world. The inspector told Mr. Gould that Woodward's word was absolutely worthless and that he had best watch out that he be not made a victim of "Big Hawley's" blackmailing schemes.

In speaking of the suit to-day, Mr. Nichols said he did not expect that the suit would ever come to trial.

"If it does," he continued, "we can have it thrown out of court easily by placing Woodward's career on the records. I would only have to tell of his conviction of an attempt to blackmail Samuel W. Bridgman, whom he accused of having attempted to alienate the affections of his pretended wife. That alone would throw the case out of court."

Woodward will depend on one man to substantiate his charge that Gould and Nicoll agreed to pay him $250,000 if he would obtain certain facts that Mr. Gould is said to have asked for, and that witness is Chandler A. Oakes, an attorney of No. 50 Pine street. Mr. Oakes asserts he was actually present at the time the agreement was made to pay this enormous fee to "Big Bill" for the sensational information desired, and he says that only because he chanced to be a witness to this transaction was it necessary for Woodward to get other counsel.

Tells Why Suit Is Brought.

"Big Bill" has been allowed to make a statement for publication, in which he has given all of his reasons for bringing the suit, and in which he tells the remarkable story of his own life. When his attorneys, however, have been asked to make the same statements as members of the bar, they have declined to do so.

Friends of the Howard Goulds who have known for a long time that the couple are separated, Mr. Gould living at the Waldorf and Mrs. Gould at the St. Regis, were intensely interested yesterday in the strange character of the suit against Mr. Gould, and they marvelled that the complainant should be a man of Woodward's type. The story of the differences between Mr. and Mrs. Gould is too well known to need retelling, it having dated from the time Mrs. Gould had trouble with her architect over the building of Castle Gould.

Woodward, who has also been known under the name of Hon. Lionel Musgrove, has one of the longest criminal records of any man known to the police, and when he was thirty-seven years old it was his boast that he had been arrested once for each year of his life.

Howard Gould is not the first of the Goulds from whom Woodward has tried to get money, he having one planned during an ocean voyage to inveigle George Gould into a card game with the idea of robbing him.

Man Caught Cheating.

Before George Gould had an opportunity to enter the game, even if he had been inclined to do so, the Hon. Lionel Musgrove, as he was then styling himself, was caught cheating, and he blandly admitted that he was a professional sharp. His contagious laugh carried him out of that difficulty.

Woodward has operated in nearly every country in the world, and his picture adorns the rogues' galleries of most big cities. He has worked nearly every game known to swindlers, varying this with conterfeiting and ordinary robbery. He jumped from a train to escape arrest for his first counterfeiting exploit.

The world-famed "Jimmy" Hope, who spent his whole life as a bank robber, became his boon companion, and in London, when Woodward first became the Hon. Lionel Musgrove, the two opened a beautiful house and ingratiated themselves with the aristocracy. When the aristocracy visited their house it played cards and Hope and Woodward escaped with thousands in "easy graft."

Australia and South Africa next saw the pair, and the son of Sam Lewis, the millionaire money lender, was one of those who had his wings singed. Woodward next turned up in Ceylon under the name of Hawley, and he found a jewel merchant who was foolish enough to let him examine a package of jewels. Shortly after, when the merchant wanted to show the jewels to another prospective purchaser, he was amazed to find that the package contained worthless trash. Meanwhile "Big Bill" was racing over the seas to spend the proceeds of his clever substitution.

TO MOVE FOR DEPOSITIONS IN EDDY SUIT

Plaintiffs' Next Move to Be Vigorously Resisted by Scientists' Counsel.

CONCORD, N. H., April 29.—That the coming week will bring an effort on the part of the counsel for the plaintiffs in the suit for the control of the affairs of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the Christian Science Church, to proceed to the taking of depositions at once is the belief of those who are following the suit.

It is known that the plaintiffs desire to make this move as early as possible. The filing of the motion of the trustees of Mrs. Eddy's estate to intervene and be substituted as plaintiffs in the suit instead of George W. Glover and the other "next friends" put this work in abeyance for the time being.

To Be Fought by Defendants.

When this action is made it is expected that a stiff fight will be begun by the defendants. It is their belief that the suit, having no reasonable grounds for existence, should not be carried to such an extent as unduly to harass Mrs. Eddy and her advisers. The taking of depositions would require much time and attention on the part of those in charge of the affairs of the church. If the motion to intervene is not sustained the defendants contend there is sufficient time then to proceed to the taking of depositions. If, on the other hand, it receives the sanction of the court and General Henry M. Baker, Archibald McLellan and Josiah E. Fernald, the trustees under the deed of trust of March 6, it will be their duty to make a reasonable investigation to see if there is sufficient ground for the continuation of the suit. Then, if it is found that the suit was not founded upon reasonable grounds, they can move for its dismissal, and the work of taking depositions will have gone to nothing.

Senator Chandler in Town.

Senator William E. Chandler, special counsel for the plaintiffs, is in town after a brief visit to his Summer home at Waterloo. He will remain here a part of the present week at least, and will continue in consultation with his associates.

George W. Baker of Bangor, a cousin of Mrs. Eddy, who joined with her son, George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., as one of the original plaintiffs, is here, and has been conferring with Mr. Chandler. Mr. Baker has been in New Hampshire the past week, having come here with the remains of his wife, who died in Maine.

BRIDE VAINLY TRIES TO WIN PA'S BLESSING

Milford Father Will Fight the Marriage of Daughter Under Age.

GROOM RELEASED ON BAIL.

Special to the Boston American.

MILFORD, April 29.—Mrs. Emma Gaffney, sixteen years old and bride of a day, tried to-day to reconcile her father, John J. Grant of Mendon, to her secret marriage yesterday to John J. Gaffney of Hopedale who had been arrested a few hours after the ceremony.

Gaffney is thirty-eight years old and his arrest was caused by the complaint of his new father-in-law who declared that in applying for a marriage license Gaffney had misrepresented both his age and the age of the bride-to-be.

Gaffney was released upon bonds of $500 furnished by his aunt.

Grant takes exception to the performance of the marriage ceremony by the Rev. A. W. Whitney of the Universalist Church who, he said, must have known that the girl was younger than nineteen which was the age given in the marriage certificate.

Notified City Officials.

Mr. Grant said to-day:

"I am glad the officers got that fellow. I was opposed to the marriage and I did not intend to ever have it take place. Two weeks ago, I understand, Gaffney got his license from the town clerk in Hopedale, and I was afraid he was intending to get married. Last week I notified the town clerks in Mendon and Milford not to give him a license if he called for one.

"Gaffney is too old. They never asked me if they could get married. I want my daughter to remain at home to do the housework, where she has been working for some time. Her mother has been ill with consumption for the past fifteen years and the place for Emma is at home.

"I am now going to take her back home with me. She is only sixteen years old, and I claim that Gaffney lies when he gives her age as nineteen years. He is about forty years old. For these reasons I ordered him arrested."

"Can't Untie the Knot."

"Yes, we are married and no one can untie us now," declared Gaffney to-day. "The world might just as well know it now as any other time. I do not care. I know there was a strong objection to us getting married, but I loved the girl and she loved me, so we have gone and done it.

"This is a good April fool for the Hopedale and Milford people. We intended to have it a secret and we have carried out our plans. We are going to Newark, N. J., taking a boat at Providence. I am a Spanish war veteran, and I know how to play the game and fool them all.

"Be sure to put this in big type so that my relatives will see it. They will be wild because we were both married by a Protestant minister, and we are both Catholics and attendants at St. Mary's Church. If the folks had not interfered we probably would not have got married this way.

Mrs. Michael Gaffney, the mother of the groom, said to-day that she was opposed to the marriage of her son.

ROCKEFELLER AT POCANTICO

NEW YORK, April 29.—Contrary to custom, Mr. and Mrs. oJhn D. Rockefeller, instead of going to their country estate in Cleveland, have decided to spend the entire Summer at Pocantico Hills.

Mr. Rockefeller will look after the construction of his new $500,000 mansion, which is being built on Kyuit Hill. He is having his eighteen-hole golf course placed in fine condition, and it is belleovd he will spend considerable of his time playing his favorite game.

DECLARES HAYWOOD AND MOYER VICTIMS OF PLOT

Sensational Exposure of Methods of Detective Agency Made in Book by Former Pinkerton Employe.

NEW YORK, April 29.—That Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone are victims of a plot conceived and executed by a detective agency, is the startling declaration of a former Pinkerton man who has just published a sensational book, purporting to lay bare an exposure of methods used against the miners during the recent strike riots.

Its publisher is the Wilshire Book Company and the author, who gives his name as Morris Friedman, asserts that he was for three years a stenographer to James McPartland, head of a branch of thedetective agency in Denver, Col., who brought to light the evidence upon wrich the three officers of the Western Federation of Miners will be tried on a charge of complicity in the murder of Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho, on May 9 in Boise City.

The book is a thrilling picture of the labor situation in the mining district in the West during the years 1902 to 1905. It shows the titanic struggles between the employers and employes in many industries in Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Arizona and California. It details the attacks, fighting, explosions, wrecking and assassinations, the arrival of troops, the Colorado bull pens and finally the advent of the secret operatives of the Pinkerton agency. It describes the work of several of these men and criticises them in the severest terms, laying bare the inside workings of the detective agency, its methods and manners.

The committee appointed by the Central Federated Union to visit President Roosevelt and personally request him to retract his declaration that Moyer and Haywood were undesirable citizens, reported yesterday that it had been unable to secure an interview with the President and demand retraction. Roosevelt was again denounced by delegates of the Central Federated Union for his denunciation of Moyer and Haywood.

Delegate Albert Abrams stated that the parade of labor organizations and the mass meeting to demand a fair trial for Moyer and Haywood would be a great success.

The collection of a gigantic fund for the defence of Moyer and Haywood is now being proceeded with, Abrams declared. The Legislatures of Colorado and Idaho had voted $50,000 for the prosecution of Moyer and Haywood, and United States Senator Borah had volunteered his services free in order that nothing might be left undone to strengthen the case against them.

THIRD TERM TALK NONSENSE —WATTERSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—Henry Watterson says in the Courier Journal to-day:

"Mr. Rossevelt has broken all the records. Tyler, Filmore, Johnson and Arthur long ago paled their ineffectual fires before him. He is a law unto himself. Nothing seems to fease him. Doing wrong things outright or good things in the wrong way—backing and filling as the case requires—making issues of veracity with the proof against him—choleric in method, cynical in action—by turns a daring temporarizer and rash assailant—a practical politician among the most practical politicians, a reformer among purists—inconsistent as a conservative, illogical as a radical—there still exists in the popular mind a firm belief in his essential virtue; in his good intentions, his integrity and his courage. His enemies would agree, that, if you offered him a bribe, he would knock you down.

"The good in bad men, the bad in good men, are sometimes magnified and sometimes denied, but here is a man who gets credit for good and bad alike, and there is nothing so successful as success.

"Yet nevertheless and notwithstanding, the President is going to find Jordan a hard road to travel.

"There may be one more victory for the Republicans in 1908, as there was for the Democrats in 1856. But it will have to be gained by a change of riders and a straddle for the talk about a third term is the purest nonsense."

QUARREL CAUSES MANY DEATHS

VICK AVOYALLES PARISH, La., April 29.—Two prominent farmers are dead, two mortally wounded and two others seriously wounded here as the result of a quarrel between two boys. W. E. Sayes stopped them, and was stabbed by the father of one of them. Other relatives joined in the affray, and Sayes shot four of them and beat another with his revolver.

26 CABOT CLUB MEN ARE HELD AS GAMESTERS

With the expectation of seeing prominent local and city politicians arraigned as defendants, a crowd packed the East Boston District Court to-day when the cases of the twenty-six men, gathered in yesterday by the police when they battered in the doors of the Cabot Club, were called.

The crowd was doomed to disappointment however, for when the defendants stood up and pleaded not guilty to the complaint, there was not one man who could be recognized as having ever taken any active part in East Boston politics. Ex-Senator Charles H. Innes of the firm of Vahey, Innes & Mansfield appeared for all of the defendants.

At the request of Sergeant Hines, who led the raid, the case was continued until May 7. The police wish to introduce witnesses to testify that the place was constantly resorted to for gaming purposes.

Edward L. Williams, who figured prominently in the recent troubles of the fight promoters in Chelsea, furnished surety for all the men and they were released under bonds of $25 each.

BOND THEFTS NOW PLACED AT $800,000

Quincy States Belief In Truth of Frank O. Squire's Denial.

PUTS BLAME ON DENNETT

Mr. Squire has said he had nothing to do with the matter. His denial is not incompatible with what I have previously said. I think it quite possible that Dennett mentioned Mr. Squire's name to me as a means of interesting me in the case, and what he said to me may have been either true or false without affecting the fact that he did use Mr. Squire's name as having suggested that I could be found at the Manhattan Club."

Trust Company Out $140,000.

A trustee of the Trust Company of America, according to dispatches from New York to the BOSTON AMERICAN, is authority for the statement that it was $300,000 and not $20,000 worth of stocks that were hidden in Dennett's bed at the Manhattan Club and recovered before he could start for Canada with them.

As things now stand, the trust company is out just exactly $140,000. The securities that are outstanding, having been hypothecated with various banking and brokerage houses by Dennett and Douglas, and which the company will have to redeem, amount to $165,000, but from this should be deducted $25,000, the amount in which Douglas was bonded by a surety company.

The trustee who has broken the silence agreed upon by the officials of the company believes that the brokers and bankers who gave Dennett and Douglas cash or the equivalent, to, say one-third of the value of the stolen securities, should be made to suffer the loss.

"Stealings Underestimated."

"When Douglass and Dennett offered securities worth $36,000 to secure from $8,000 to $10,00 in cash," said this trustee, "doesn't it stand to reason that a suspicion should have been raised? Wouldn't any ordinary person wonder why collateral worth just the amount wanted was not offered instead of the excess amount? In all of the cases where Douglass and Dennett disposed of the stolen securities they got nothing like the half value of them."

While this trustee refused to state just what total amount Douglass's stealings would foot up to, he admitted that many of the estimates so far given were low. He did state, however, that the amount did not total $1,000,000.

Cannot Trace Friends.

The trustee was reminded that it had been stated that Douglass stole $550,000 and that ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy of Boston had said that when consulted in the deal Dennett had told him that "his friend" had taken $1,000,000 worth of securities. The member of the executive committee said:

"Well, the total stealings amount to a figure between these two."

What has become of the money Douglass and Dennett raised is unexplained. The trustee who talked yesterday said that while he was of the opinion that much of this had been lost in speculation he felt sure that the pair had a snug sum tucked away somewhere.

Trapped by Needless Haste.

"Dennett was able to offer $7,000 cash for his release on bail," said the trustee, "and that would indicate that he had some money. Furthermore, Dennett had from Saturday until Tuesday, when he was finally arrested, to get the money out of sight. There was not much money found on Douglass when he was arrested late on Saturday night."

The trustee then said that had Douglass kept cool and not rushed away from his desk at 10:45 o'clock on Saturday morning he could easily have got far away before the robbery was discovered. The failure of the assistant bond clerk to return to his desk before closing time was what caused suspicion, and a hasty examination of the securities supposed to be on hand disclosed the stealing.

PLAN PENSION FOR DISABLED CITY HORSES

New York's Broken Down and Old Animals to End Their Days in Pasture.

NEW YORK, April 29.—New York is preparing to see that its faithful dumb servants shall be the beneficiaries of "old age pensions," just as provision is made for the pensioning of firemen, policemen and other employes on their retirement for old age. All the horses owned by the city which become disabled or broken down in its service will be the beneficiaries of the new county.

The pensions will take the form of seeing that the veteran servants are retired to farms where they can grow fat in pasture or at light farm work.

All that is necessary for putting the plan into execution is Governor Hughes's signature to a bill passed by the Legislature authorizing heads of city departments to transfer to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals the worn-out animals, instead of selling them at auction. "Mayor" McClellan has just returned the bill to Albany after signing it. As Governor Hughes is a member of the society his signature is expected to be attached.

Hitherto East Side peddlers have been the usual purchasers of old city horses, and they have fared badly.

4,000 MILES TO KILL FIANCEE

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—An old world romance, begun two years ago, 1,000 miles away in a little Russian village, came to a tragic end here to-day when Alexis Frank shot and killed Maria Carlac and then ended his own life with a revolver.

When Frank fell in love with the girl and she said she loved him in Russia, he swore a mighty oath that she should marry no other. But Maria's love cooled, and, fearing her hot-headed admirer, she left her home and eventually sailed for America.

Frank followed as soon as he could and spent months seeking her after he arrived here. To-day they met on the street and in less than two minutes later both were dead.

O'MEARA CALLS VETERAN BILL POLICE MENACE

Scores Proposed Legislation Giving Spanish War Soldiers Preference.

Believing that the demoralization of the police force of the city of Boston is imminent, Commissioner O'Meara, in a public statement to-day sounds an emphatic note of warning against the passage by the Legislature of the bill now half through it, providing that veterans of the Spanish War shall be given an advantage in the ratings of the civil service examinations.

"If it should become a law," declares Mr. O'Meara, "it would destroy the foundation upon which the future efficiency of the police force rests." He goes on to point out that second, third and fourth rate men would be pushed over the heads of those who had proven their superiority in fair competition. The measure, he says, strikes not only at the police of Boston, but at the police and all other branches of the public service throughout the State.

"I am not willing," states Commissioner O'Meara, "that without fair warning from the official who is responsible for their police force, the people of Boston shall submit, in the case of policemen, to the shoving aside of the practical tests of mental and physical fitness provided for by the civil service of Massachusetts."

MEYER DENIES HE'S TO RESIGN

HAMILTON, April 29.—Branding as false stories that he is to leave the post-office department, Postmaster-General George von L. Meyer denies that he is about to resign because of interference in his department by Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, his predecessor, or First Assistant Postmaster-General Hitchcock.

WIFE, REMARRIED, STILL GETS ALIMONY

NEW YORK, April 29.—Although at the time of E. V. Bell's marriage to the divorced wife of John E. Madden, the turfman, friends of Bell maintained that he would not allow his wife to receive any support from Madden, they were wrong, as Mrs. Bell has opposed efforts of Madden to vacate the order of the courts of Ohio which compels Madden to pay alimony of $250 a month, and, as he claims, "support another man's wife." The hearing will be Tuesday in Cincinnati.

STEAD STARTS WAR IN PEACE MASS MEETING

Tells Chicago Audience to "Put Resolutions in Pipe and Smoke Them."

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, April 29.—William T. Stead mixed a little war with his world peace propaganda yesterday when he bluntly told a mass meeting of Chicago citizens that so far as he was concerned they might "put their resolutions in their pipe and smoke them."

The resolutions which aroused the English editor's ire had been presented by Professor Albion W. Small, following Mr. Stead's address at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium. They were practically the same as those adopted recently by the New York peace conference.

"Long Winded and Six-Jointed."

Mr. Stead's resolution in substance was that every effort should be "concentrated in saving Christendom from war."

The outbreak created a sensation in the meeting, which had been peaceable enough up to that point. Sitting on the platform at the time, besides Mrs. Stead, were Professor Small, Miss Jane Addams, Wilbur Messer, secretary of the Central Y. M. C. A., and Chairman Jenkin Lloyd, Jr.

"But Mr. Stead——" began Professor Small, rising and flushing a trifle. Mr. Stead would not permit interruption.

"The resolutions possess every possible defect," he insisted. "They are long-winded, six-jointed and nonsensical."

Proposes Substitute.

He then proposed the substitute resolution, which, he said, had "powder and shot" in it. It endorsed the editor's plan, enunciated recently at New York, for a peace pilgrimage, "starting in American and winding up at The Hague conference next June."

When Mr. Stead took his seat Professor Small said he was willing to do anything to please the visitor. He moved that Mr. Stead's ideas be indorsed by the meeting.

PAYS CHURCH DEBT, WINS WIFE AND HOME

Offered a $5,000 residence by a wealthy parishioner if he would free the Woburn Methodist Episcopal Church from debt, the young pastor, the Rev. Wilson E. Vandermark, has succeeded in wiping out the obligation, and to-night will wed Miss Mabel Henderson of Cambridge at her home, No. 7 Chester avenue.

ADDICKS STILL MILLIONAIRE SAYS LYNN MAN

Scouts Stories That "Gas Man" Is Dodging Law or On Starvation's Verge.

LYNN, April 29.—That J. Edward Addicks is not bankrupt, but is worth millions, neither is he in hiding in Hoboken, N. J., Philadelphia, or any other city, is the declaration of John F. Donahue of this city, confidential friend and adviser of the Delaware "gas man." Mr. Donahue states that Mr. Addicks is at the Philadelphia Union League Club, of which he is a charter member, where the Lynn man says he called him up Saturday night.

Mr. Donahue further states that Mr. Addicks has been living in a house on Bloomfield street, Hoboken, where he went for a rest, but he discredits all stories of his hiding from process servers, or of his cracker and milk diet, or that he endeavored to get his landlady to invest her little fortune in stocks under his direction.

Further, Mr. Donahue says:

"I know that if I had one-tenth of his fortune, I would consider myself extremely well off.

"While Mr. Addicks has lost much in speculation, I know that he is worth at least $2,000,000 to-day. There is no question of it.

"He sold some mining property three months ago and received $100,000 in one-tenth payment. The balance of $900,000 he put into an extensive mining property of Colorado, in which I am interested.

Has Property in Boston.

"Mr. Addicks has property at Calf Pasture, Boston, near the old plant of the Bay State Gas Company. It is partially improved. But it is all his, and unencumbered.

"He will be a candidate for the United States Senate as long as he lives. And he is stronger with the rank and file to-day than ever before. The true Addicks is not generally known to the public. He has been maligned and misrepresented. He is a crafty business man, but he is not the 'goat' most people think he is."

Mr. Donohue's statement was called forth by a report from New York that Addicks, former multi-millionaire and aspirant for the United States senatorship from Delaware, is bankrupt, and that he left Hoboken only to escape process servers. It also stated that Emil Schmitz, son of Mrs. Matilda Fischer, Addicks' landlady at Hoboken, was so fearful that his mother would be induced to sell her little property for the purpose of giving Addicks a stake to play the market, that he intended to get out an injunction claiming his mother was hypnotized.

BOSTON LOSES HEAVILY IN BIG SHIPPING DEAL

Morse-New Haven Agreement Results in Withdrawal of 3 Steamship Lines.

ABANDON 15-HOUR TRIPS

Boston loses three steamship services as the direct result of agreement of the Morse shipping trust and the New York, New Haven & Hartford. Of these services two were projected and one, the Boston and Philadelphia Steamship Line, which is to be abandoned.

Of the projected lines one is the fifteen hour service between New York and Boston for which the steamers Harvard and Yale were especially built. For some time there has been rumors that this service would never be established. One reason advanced is that they have failed to come up to the expectations of their builders and owners.

To Run to Jamestown Fair.

According to the present plans, these two steamers are to run between New York and Jamestown, carrying visitors to the Exposition.

In return for the kindness of the Morse people, the New Haven Road officials will say that they were only joking when they planned the great outside freight line which was to take all the business away from the Metropolitan Line.

Now that the Morse Line gives up its Boston service the New Haven gives up the freight business, and the Fall River Line will be doing business at the old stand.

City at Morse's Mercy.

It is possible that some time in future the Merchants and Miners' Line will also give up Boston as a terminal for the Narragansett ports, but there is no whisper of this at the present and things are likely to continue as they are for a long time.

The withdrawal of the New Haven freight line will leave Boston in the hands of the Morse combine, which can fix rates for water service to New York as it pleases. The purchase of the Joy Line service leaves the combine in absolute monopoly of the direct freight business. On the other hand, the New Haven Road continues its passenger monopoly of the rail and sound lines to New York.

The Philadelphia steamers carry passengers, but the New Haven can take care of these as it does its Fall River Line passengers, sending boat trains from the South Station to Fall River and Providence.

TO TURN DOWN SCHOOLS' HEAD

Superintendent of Schools Gordon O. Southworth, of Somerville, will not be re-elected at the annual election to-night, it is rumored.

This decision, it is reported, was reached at a "star chamber" session of the board. The plan for to-night is simply to cast blank ballots.

WAITRESS WEDS A MILLIONAIRE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—Two months ago, while spending a few days fishing at Catalina Island, F. H. Boris, a stock broker of Pittsburg, met Miss Jennie Donahue, a pretty young waitress in the Hotel Metropole. During the coming week the millionaire and the girl, who smiled upon him while serving his meals, are to wed.

LITTLE BOY BEGS POLICE TO FIND FATHER

Lynn Lad Asks Them to Seek Parent, Missing From Home Eight Days.

Begs Police to Find His Father For Sick Mother

ROLAND LA MUDGE

LYNN, April 29.—Little Roland La Mudge, whose father, Alvin La Mudge, disappeared from his home at No. 176 Chestnut street eight days ago, has requested the police to find his father and ask him to come home. The boy's mother has grieved herself sick since the disappearance of her husband. She has furnished the police a description of the missing man. They have sent the description to police throughout the country.

La Mudge left Lynn a week ago yesterday and at first his wife thought that he had gone to Boston where his mother lives.

All inquiries about him have proved fruitless and in despair Mrs. La Mudge has turned to the police. She says that she and her husband were married fourteen years ago and lived happily together until last Fall when La Mudge, his wife says, became attracted to another woman and began to neglect his home.

"One night," she said to-day, "he asked me whether if he went away with another woman he would ever be taken back by me. I told him no. I am sorry I said that now because I would gladly take him back if he would come."

MAYOR AS HOST URGES LOANS

Mayor Fitzgerald is host of members of the Board of Aldermen at Young's this noon, while he talks to them concerning the necessity of a loan of $500,000 for street improvements and another loan of $300,000 for extension of water mains and the replacement of old mains with new.

The water department loan was defeated in the Common Council last Thursday evening by members of the Mayor's own party, but he has hopes that it will eventually pass.

LYNN SAILOR DROWNED.

BOWLER FACES CHARGES MADE BY 'POCU' TODAY

Harvard Spendthrift, on Whom Mrs. Edith Stevens Reynolds Lavished $300,000, in Court.

HIS SPECTACULAR CAREER

From Charles street jail, where he has been lying for the past two weeks, in spite of the frantic efforts of Mrs. Edith Stevens Reynolds, the young, beautiful and wealthy woman who declares that she loves him, and his wife, Mrs. Helen L. Bowler, whom he deserted for her, to procure bail for his release, George P. Bowler, champion Harvard spendthrift, comes into the Municipal Court to face the charge of having obtained $14,400 from "Poco" Bennett, Harvard old clothes man, on eight notes, indorsed Robert Pendleton Bowler, the latter name said to have been forged.

To-day in court will be told the story of young Bowler's spectacular career in Harvard, culminating in his arrest in New York City, after a visit "Poco" Bennett paid to his brother, Robert P. Bowler, a New York lawyer, during which the brother told Bennett he had not signed the notes that the old clothes man held from George P. Bowler, and the subsequent confinement of the latter in the Tombs for a week, from whence he was brought to Boston and placed in the Charles street jail.

Bowler's Spendthrift Career.

And the history of the life of young Bowler in Cambridge and Boston is interesting, if not creditable to the young man.

Coming to Harvard from Cincinnati, with the fond hopes of his family that he would follow in the footsteps of his brother, Robert, who graduated from the academic course in 1893, and from the Law School in 1906, Bowler had his college career nipped in the bud during his first year. He was admitted again in the next year, but again left the institution. Then he tried for the third time, and this was his last. But he stayed in Cambridge and gathered about him the bosom friends of his college days, and his rooms on Trinity street were the scene of many a merry gathering, while the almost nightly appearance of Bowler and his party in the down town district of Boston was signaled as ready money by the nighthawk cabmen. During this period, Bowler sported a stable of a dozen wiry little polo ponies for the use of himself and friends. He spent money like water, and succeeded in getting away with several hundred thousand dollars before his family called a halt and tied up his money in two trust funds, after paying all his debts.

Soon Tires of Married Life.

Meantime, in 1900, he married and took his wife to Palm Beach, Florida, to live for the Winter. While there his expenses amounted to the trifling sum of $75,000. Because of his convivial habits, Bowler's married bliss did not last long and, in 1905, in behalf of herself and little daughter, Muriel, now seven years of age, Mrs. Bowler filed a suit for separate maintenance against her husband, stating that, when he left her, he took $8,000 worth of jewelry that had been given her, and mortgaged the furniture. The suit was allowed and Bowler ordered to pay $35 a week to support wife and daughter. In 1904, Bowler met, in New York, Mrs. Edith Stevens Reynolds, wife of another Harvard man, and for the next three months they were much in each others company and, in March of 1905, Mrs. Reynolds fled with Bowler to the West, taking along more than $300,000 that she had inherited. Life was one long, sweet song with them as long as the money lasted—about a year—after which a quarrel arose and Bowler left her.

"Poco" Bennett Gets Anxious.

Meanwhile, "Poco" Bennett, to whom Bowler had resorted after the tying up of his funds at the death of his mother, in 1903, was getting tired of waiting for his $14,400, and was pressing Bowler for his money, getting no satisfaction. When three years was up, Poco made his visit to New York and Bowler will to-day face his charges in Municipal Court.

WIDOW LEFT $50,000,000 BY SILENT SMITH

Nursed and Comforted by Duke and Duchess of Manchester. Bride Arrives Ill.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Mrs. James Henry Smith, widow of "Silent" Smith, will receive $50,000,000 from his estate, according to a will made upon their wedding day and which is believed by her to be his last testament.

Mrs. Smith, who arrived here on the steamship Siberia from Japan, where Smith died, is almost a physical wreck, and on the voyage was attended night and day by her maids and the Duchess of Manchester. The Duke of Manchester acted as the spokesman of the party to-day, and said he wished to make it plain that Smith died of pneumonia.

It was given out that the wedding day will was the only one of which Mrs. Smith had any knowledge. It is said that it differs in many respects from the will said to be in the possession of Lady Cooper, in which Mrs. Smith is said to be left only $5,000,000.

All members of the party, however, assert positively that there will be no discussion of the estate until after the funeral in New York, and that Mrs. Smith will confer with Lady Cooper before any decision as to a contest will be reached.

The party was met here by Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, father of the Duchess of Manchester, and will leave for the East to-night in Mr. Zimmerman's private car. The body of Smith will be conveyed in a special car attached to the same train.

RELIGIOUS FORMS GREATLY CHANGED

Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., of New York declared last night in Appleton Chapel at Harvard that if religion means sacrifice, fasting and special days, religion is in decadence to-day. The whole sacrificial system is gone; men won't go to church so much now as they did in the middle ages.

"If religion is doing justly and doing mercifully, and walking humbly with God, religion in the United States is not in decadance. One hundred years ago the minister's sideboard was like a bar, and the minister sometimes like the men inside the bar.

"Listening to sermons is no more the practice of religion than listening to law lectures is practice of law. Religion consists in making the right connection with the divine power, and the way to the heart of God is by finding out what God is doing in the world and doing it with him."

AMERICA ABLE TO GIVE WORLD FINEST RACE

"Vegetation Wizard" Would Treat Young America as He Has Plant Life.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Luther Burbank, famous the world over as the "vegetation wizard," has turned his attention for the moment from the crossing of plants to a study of human beings. Mr. Burbank says that in America's cosmopolitan population there exists a grand opportunity for developing the finest race of human beings the world has ever known, provided that as to plants, the proper crossing is done.

Proper environment, thereafter, in childhood is needed to bring the race to a high standard of perfection, declares Mr. Burbank, whose remarkable views on his human culture are given in his book, "The Training of the Human Plant."

"Let me lay emphasis on the opportunity now presented in the United States for observing," says he in his book, "and, if we are wise, aiding in what I think it fair to say is the grandest opportunity ever presented of developing the finest race the world has ever known out of the vast mingling of races brought here by immigration.

Says Children Are Crossed.

"We are more crossed than any other nations in the history of the world and we see the same results that are always seen in a much-crossed race or plants, the worst as well as the best qualities of each are brought out in their fullest intensities.

"I wish to lay special stress upon absurdity, not to call it by a harsher term, of running children through the same mill in a lot, with absolutely no real reference to their individuality. The wave of public dishonesty which seems to be sweeping over this country is chiefly due to a lack of proper training, breeding, if you will, in the formative years of life.

"No boy or girl should see the inside of a school house until at least ten years old. I am speaking now of the boy or girl who can be reared in the only place that is truly fitting to bring up a boy or a plant—the country. The curse of modern child life in America is over-education."

Closer Touch with Nature.

Mr. Burbank refers frequently to love as an essential to cultivating the child's life. Here are some of his sayings:

"Pick out any trait you want in your child, granted that he is a normal child, be it honesty, purity, lovableness, industry, thrift, what not.

"By surrounding this child with sunshine from the sky and from your own heart, by giving him the closest communion with nature, by feeding this child nutritious food, by giving it all that is implied in healthful environmental influences and by doing it in life, you can cultivate in the child and fix there for all its life all of these traits.

"In child rearing environment is equally essential with heredity. There is no such thing in the world, there never has been such a thing, as a predestined child predestined for Heaven or hell. Heredity is simply the sum of all the effects of all the environments of all past generations on the responsive, ever-moving life force."

CANADA NEAR COAL FAMINE

VANCOUVER, April 29.—Regarding the possible results of a continuation of the Fernie strike, Calgary wholesale dealers and manufacturers consider the coal situation most serious. An official of one prominent firm said that if the railway coal supply gave out and a tie-up resulted, there would be a famine from Edmonton to Macleod and Lethbridge. A two weeks' tie-up on the railways would put many firms out of business. Most of the manufacturing plants have not more than a week's supply of coal on hand.

MANIAC THOUGHT HE COMMANDED ARMY

PORTLAND, Me., April 29.—Fever-crazed John Malla, a longshoreman, imagining he was the commander-in-chief of an American army besieging Pekin, last night kept Mrs. Crandall Swett and her five children prisoners in their house for six hours, and terrified them so that Mrs. Swett collapsed when the life-saving patrol took Malla prisoner.

NEW DIVORCE BILL TO PROTECT EMPIRE STATE

N. Y. Senate Has Measure to Check Scandal Arising from Dakota Decrees.

ALBANY, April 29.—A divorce bill of far-reaching importance has been introduced by Senator Taylor. It is designed to put an end to scandals of the Dakota divorce.

"It's purpose," exclaimed Senator Taylor, "is to bring about a uniform divorce law. The scandals that have arisen from out-of-State divorces make the passage of my bill necessary."

The bill provides: "Full faith and credit shall be given in all the courts of this State to a decree of annulment of marriage or of divorce by a court of competent jurisdiction in another State, territory or possession of the United States, when the jurisdiction of such court was obtained in the manner and in substantial conformity with the conditions prescribed in sections 7742A, 1756 and 1763 of this code.

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed to limit the power of any court to give such effect to a decree of annulment or divorce by a court of a foreign country, as may be justfied by the rules of international comity, provided that if any inhabitant of this State shall go into another State, territory or country in order to obtain a decree of divorce for a cause which is not ground for divorce under the laws of the State, a decree so obtained shall be of no force or effect in this State.

"Jurisdiction may be obtained by personal or substituted service upon the defendant, provided the cause of action alleged was recognized in the jurisdiction in which the plaintiff resided at the time the cause of action arose as a ground for the same relief asked for in the action in this State."

PRETTIEST GIRL IN DIXIE WEDS

ATLANTA, April 29.—The prettiest girl in the South, according to President Roosevelt, became the bride of a New Yorker, when Miss Adelaide Allen and Leonard Day were married. The wedding took place at the First Methodist Church in Atlanta. President Roosevelt met Miss Allen at the reception given in his honor while in Atlanta at the State Fair. He declared she was the prettiest girl he had seen in the South.

Mr. Day is a lawyer in New York.

NEW FUEL LAYS WASTE FARM

WATERBURY, Conn., April 29.—Charles Stinson, a well-known farmer, near Woodbury, has been trying the new mixed fuel, and with good success in farm cooking. He made a fire with it to try out some hog fat. The fire became so hot that it ignited a wooden box. Then the shed building caught fire, and this and the old barn nearby and a big hennery were consumed. Stinson lost everything, including nearly all of his whiskers, in the struggle to subdue the flames. Nearly all the farmers in this section are neglecting their crops to pay homage to the new fuel.

ELECTRIC CHAIR AT TRENTON

TRENTON, N. J., April 29.—Governor Stokes has affixed his signature to the bill of Senator Wakelee making it the duty of the State Prison Inspectors to provide a suitable deathhouse in the State Prison grounds here, to be used in putting murderers to death by electricity.

Trenton being the State capital, the Legislature said this was the place for such things.

8 HONDURAN REBELS DEFY YANKEE GUNS

Troops Hurried Ashore After Death Threat Is Made Against Ensign.

PUERTO CORTEZ, April 29.—The story of how eight Honduran revolutionists offered determined resistance to United States marines, for about eight minutes, is told in the correspondence of the American gunboat Marietta. Colonel Louis Isaulla, the revolutionary commander at Tela, threatened to kill Ensign McNair of the Marietta when he went ashore to announce that American marines would protect foreign property.

Commander Fullam sent a body of marines ashore to demand an apology. They were met with a counter demand for apologies from Isaulla. The marines found the revolutionists drawn up in skirmish line. When he saw the Americans were in earnest Isaulla quickly wrote an apology.

One of the acts for which Isaulla was forced to apologize was threatening the life of William Collins, an Englishman, who raised the British flag over his residence. Commander Fullam made it plain to the revolutionists that the United States will tolerate no insults to the English flag.

RELEASE KIDNAPPED BOY.

SALONIKA, European Turkey, April 29.—Robert Abbott, son of a prominent British subject here, who was kidnapped from his father's garden March 24, has been liberated.

SOFT MUSIC HELPS DINERS' MASTICATION

London Epicures Say Orchestras in Restaurants Prolong Life if Tempo is Slow.

LONDON, April 29.—Does music aid digestion? is the latest question propounded for newspaper discussion. The growing custom of providing orchestral music in London restaurants, while it drives many persons away, seems to attract a majority, although the number of those preferring to dine in quiet is sufficiently large to encourage some restaurants to advertise "no orchestra."

The point now under discussion is the peptic value of music, and the verdict of alimentarians seems to be that it mainly depends upon the quality and loudness of the music. Feeding ought to be undertaken, they say, in a calm, deliberate manner, with the greater part of the mind alert to the importance of thoroughly masticating and salivating the food. With an orchestra playing fast and furious within a few feet of a table the necessary effort of shouting to make oneself heard or straining to hear a conversation upsets the quiet of the nervous system, which is imperative for good digestion.

On the other hand, soft, dreamy music does not interfere with conversation and promotes digestion. Many persons cannot eat when music is being played without keeping time to it with their jaws.

This is well enough when the tempo is slow, but no one can effect thorough mastication when the jaw is working in a wild rush to keep pace with a Sousa march.

ALDERMAN'S UNCLE FOUND DEAD IN HARBOR

Foul Play Feared in Mystery of Patrick Curley's Death Last December.

SEEN IN HEATED QUARREL

Patrick Curley, uncle of Alderman James M. Curley, who disappeared last December, was the dead man whose body was found in the Charles River Saturday and the police are now investigating the circumstances under which he was last seen, in the belief that the man's death was due to foul play. Alderman Curley and his brother, John J. Curley identified the body from some papers in the pockets of the dead man's clothing.

It is recalled that Mr. Curley, who was about forty-five years old and an employe of the Boston Water Department, living at No. 50 George street, Roxbury, attended a Charlestown rally in the interests of his nephew's candidacy for election as Alderman.

Mr. Curley was a devoted worker for the younger Curley and, it is stated, got into a heated quarrel with some unknown men on the political situation. He was seen in City square, Charlestown, after the rally by a friend, Joseph Fitzpatrick, talking with some men Fitzpatrick did not know. Since then nothing had been heard of him.

Search by the police and friends, under the energetic direction of Alderman Curley and other relatives was of no avail in tracing him, and the theory that he had been "shanghaied" and robbed and murdered by waterside characters was accepted as the only reasonable solution of the mystery.

The discovery of the body, however, taken with the incident on the night of his disappearance, has caused a rigid inquiry to be set on foot on the supposition that the man was thrown over the Warren street bridge in a fight, resulting from the quarrel after the rally. His body has undoubtedly been in the harbor all Winter.

After the identification in the North Grove Street Morgue, Alderman Curley sought the aid of the Rev. Maurice J. Flynn, of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, to break the sad news to Mrs. Curley, at her George street home. Mrs. Curley is the mother of six small children, the eldest being but thirteen years old. Despite the kindness and care of Farther Flynn, the shocking story caused a violent hysterical attack and the bereaved woman, her worst fears confirmed, is in a serious condition.

Mr. Curley was an active member of the Tammany Club of Ward 17 and bore an excellent reputation among his friends and associates.

STROMBOLI IN ERUPTION, QUAKE FEARED

NAPLES, April 29.—The volcano of Stromboli is in active eruption, and residents of the surrounding islands, Sicily, and even in Calabria, are panic stricken, fearing a destructive earthquake will follow the eruption. Slight shocks have been felt in several parts of Italy, as well as in the adjoining islands, and these have added to the fear of the people.

Ashes and cinders thrown out by the volcano have been carried many miles, and great damage has been done. Scores of vineyards in Sicily and Calabria have been ruined.

It is not known what damage has been wrought in the island of Stromboli, as the cable communications have been interrupted and only signal messages have come through.

Records on the instruments in the Mont Etna observatory show that the eruption is an extremely violent one, and it is feared the worst has not yet come.

LIBERTY'S LIGHT TO SHINE.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—After being dark for several years, the statue of Liberty on Bedloes Island, New York harbor, will again be lighted and a military guard will be maintained at the statue.

PASTOR STANDS FOR RIGHTS OF DEAD NEWSBOY

Rev. H. S. Johnson Preaches on Topic of Little Fellow's Death by Auto.

'STAIN ON BOSTON'S NAME'

"He was only a newsboy," was the excuse given for neglecting to investigate the killing of a boy by an automobile in Mattapan last Monday, according to the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson.

"The Rights of a Newsboy" was the topic of the Rev. Mr. Johnson's sermon in the Warren Avenue Baptist Church last night.

He said in part:

"I suppose that after this address I will soon receive anonymous letters asking me to mind my own business.

"This question of manslaughter is a question of patriotism and of religion. I believe a grievous injustice has been done to this newsboy at Mattapan, and I speak for the dead newsboy.

"Bright, High-Minded Boy."

"Of course I know he was 'nothing but a newsboy.' How often we hear that phrase: 'He was nothing but a workingman, nothing but a newsboy,' etc. But that name is only a mask. Under it was one of the best and highest-minded boys in the city."

Mr. Johnson stated that he had learned something about the Mattapan newsboy, and had talked with his parents. The boy was a very attractive, intelligent lad, an attendant at the public schools and at the Sunday school. His ambition was to enter college and learn landscape gardening, and his earnings from selling papers were being saved to that end. He was but twelve years old.

"Stain on City of Boston."

"I stood in Mattapan square forty-eight hours ago," said Mr. Johnson, "and when I saw the blood-stained spot, covered with dust, it seemed to me that that newsboy's blood was a stain on the city of Boston. No one was at fault, it was said. But why didn't they move last week? If an officer of the law had done his duty and brought the matter into court, similar accidents which have occurred since might have been avoided."

PLEADS GUILTY OF ATTACK TO DODGE ASYLUM

Rather than risk being officially considered insane and sent to an asylum, Thomas Davies, who shot Miss Elizabeth Maher, a trained nurse, at her home at No. 25 East Concord street, on February 12, because she refused to marry him, pleaded guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon before Judge Brown in the Municipal Court to-day.

Davies was on trial last week and his defence was that he was mentally irresponsible at the time of the shooting. Since a carriage accident in which his head was injured, Frank H. Flagg, Davies's attorney, claimed that Davies had been periodically insane.

To-day Davies and his counsel were convinced that the insanity plea might result in the commitment of the former to one of the State asylums and Davies decided to go into court and plead guilty. He will probably be given a light sentence.

Miss Maher, who was shot, left the City Hospital some time before the beginning of Davies's trial, but the bullet from Davies's revolver is still in her body. She was not in court when Davies pleaded guilty this morning.

CHAPTER I.

The Heritage

"CLAUDIA! Claudia!" The words came faintly from lips made tense by suffering. A wasted form outstretched upon a cot in Bellevue Hospital quivered with anguish as the patient's face was uplifted to gaze into the tender eyes of the nurse bending over him.

"Is your suffering worse, father?" she asked gently.

"No, not worse, but the end is coming swiftly, and I must talk to you."

The calm nurse who had been allowed by special favor to care for her father was gone, fled with the old man's words. In her place the half-frenzied child bent over the old man, clasping his wasted form to her and moaning piteously:

"Don't say it, father. I cannot live without you. We have been everything to each other. You cannot go away and leave me behind, alone."

"Yes, child, alone," the old physician whispered. "Ah, that is the hardest thing to bear in this hour. Death is not fearful to me. Many times when I have looked back on my past and thought of the life wasted——"

"No, no father; it has not been wasted!" cried the girl. "Who that has known you, known of your sacrifices, of the gratitude of the thousands you have aided without thought of repayment, can call your life wasted?

"Do not talk so, father. Those who have known Paul Wingate, his charity, his kindness and his skill can testify that if he has not been accounted successful in this world there is One who has a truer knowledge of what the word success truly means.

Revelations

"And, father, dear," she whispered, bending lower, "do not fear for me. Would that I could have told you sooner, but it can at least relieve your fears for me that I am not to be alone; that one man, the man of all the world to me, has asked that I let him care for me while we both live, and that I have promised to answer him within a week."

"Then I am ready for the night to come," he said, simply. "And his name, Claudia?"

"Heath," she answered, "Aubrey Heath."

With a cry that rang through the corridors the dying physician loosened the hands of his daughter.

"Heath!" he cried. "That name again! Who is he, girl—tell me?"

"Father, dear father," cried the girl, "compose yourself. What does it matter. Please lie down. You frighten me."

"Is he an Englishman? Answer me, Claudia."

"Yes, he is the son of John Heath, the millionaire, who is said to be the exiled heir to Heath Hall. But why, father? What do you know of him?"

"Murderer—a murderer," sounded faintly from the fast numbing lips.

Not Guilty!

Outside the door of the ward the white, eager face of a woman garbed in nurse's attire bent forward, her ears straining to catch the indistinct tones of the dying man. From her lips came a whispered echo of the old man's words: "Murderer! He is the man."

Then, as she glided noiselessly down the corridor, she muttered: "Luck is with you, Kitty Dangerfield. You hold the cards now in your own hands."

Inside the ward Dr. Wingate had freed himself from his daughter's embrace and the fragile body stiffened as his hand threw back the covers under which he had cowered. As the physician sat erect the glazing eyes seemed to grow bright and pierce far beyond the walls of the room. The mumbling tones grew clear and rang bugle-like through the room.

"Back, you fiend—I was right—death was your due—due to humanity and yourself. Not guilty, thank God—not guilty!"

The hands that had been thrown out in supplication were raised as in token of triumph, the frail form collapsed upon the bed and Claudia Wingate was an orphan.

CHAPTER II.

"Married in Haste"

"BUT, Claudia, dearest, why not give me the right to take you away from all this now?"

Six weeks had elapsed since Claudia Wingate fell to the floor beside her father's deathbed in a swoon, and Kitty Dangerfield glided away, muttering, "I hold all the cards in my hands now." Day after day had Aubrey Heath pleaded with the gentle girl he loved to marry him at once and leave the scene of her sorrow, but she had wrapped herself in her grief like a coat of mail and answered always, "Do not speak to me of love yet. It is too soon."

"I am going to drag you away from it this minute," he said. Run up to your room and get your things, and in five minutes I'll whisk you away from this grim old place faster than Lochinvar or any of those other fellows ever ran away with their sweethearts."

"Please, please, Aubrey, dear, go away now," she said faintly. "When I am off duty this afternoon I will meet you at the entrance and walk with you a little, but you must leave me now."

She disappeared within the door of the ward. Aubrey Heath walked slowly down the broad stairway and out of the doors of the hospital.

The younger son of an ancient English family, whose lineage and wealth had gained him access to any place he chose, Aubrey Heath had never known a real care. As a child he had been brought to America by his father, John Heath, now rated as one of the commercial bulwarks of bustling New York.

The only relatives the boy had known were his father and his elder brother Francis. His mother had died the year of his birth. Between the brothers there had been little communion. While the love of his surviving parent had been equally shared between the sons, the eldest boy had always been the companion and confidant of stern old John Heath.

But no wish had ever been denied Aubrey. Sent back to England to be educated, he had been supplied with unlimited funds, had been given carte blanche to go wherever he chose, to select the companions that suited him. Only one command had been given by John Heath.

"Do not go near Heath Hall, and do not speak or listen to tales concerning it or its owners."

Resolution

The boy had early become imbued with the spirit of the land his father had adopted, and was loyally American. His outspoken enthusiasm for his new home had even caused many clashes with his brother Francis as boys.

The elder brother was still in spirit the master of Heath Hall and Sir Francis Heath, baronet.

Condemned to abandon the baronial hall that his childish memory held dear by the same mysterious fate that had caused his father to forsake it, Francis Heath made little effort to conceal the loathing he bore the city and land of his enforced exile.

Knowing his brother's aversion to those not born within the sacred circles of aristocracy, Aubrey could picture vividly the rage that would greet the homecoming of a bride, penniless, one who had labored for her livelihood, and of whose parentage even her sweetheart knew but the barest details.

Aubrey thought of this as he left the hospital. But with the thought came a sudden accession of the obstinacy that was one of the most pronounced traits of the young man's character. A sudden thought possessed him, and with it came the determination to make the plunge for good or evil.

"It is the only way," he said. "I will do it, and do it to-day."

The Final Plea

Two hours later Claudia Wingate was summoned to the waiting room of the hospital in which she was employed. Half eager, half frightened, she gazed into the face of the suitor whose proffer she had rejected, and whom she had entreated to leave her to her fate but a few hours before.

It was with a revulsion of spirit that the girl put both her slender hands into his outstretched ones. Every minute, every moment since she had repulsed him Claudia had hoped against hope that he had not taken her words as final, and, with all the perversity of a woman, longed to hear him say again: "Sweetheart, come with me."

"I have come to you, Claudia," he said, simply. "The gentleman with me"—he turned with a gesture indicating a silent and kindly-faced man in clerical garb who accompanied him—"is the Rev. Mr. Southgate of St. Agatha's Church. He was a friend of my mother and attended her in her last moments. I have explained to him our present position, and he has advised me to marry you at once."

Claudia started and turned toward the door, but her suitor was beside her in an instant.

"Darling, it is the only way," he said, firmly, putting his arm tenderly about her waist. "You need me and I need you. I will tell you now what I did not tell you before—that there are business interests in California which I must look after at once. I start this afternoon to be gone for months. Claudia, sweetheart, must I go alone and leave you here?"

He felt her start and shiver against him as he spoke of leaving her, and, although she was otherwise apparently unmoved by his pleadings, he took heart of grace.

"As You Wish"

"Sweetheart, sweetheart," he whispered, bending his handsome head to hers while the kindly clergyman pretended to be looking out of the window, "give me the right to take you away. I have the license in my pocket and here is my mother's wedding ring, which I have always carried. Will my wife not wear it for me to-day?"

The pleading tones, the loving looks and gestures won. Putting away from her the terrible heritage of her father's dying accusation of himself—a murderer—as but the delirium of a dying man, although something within her told her the words were more than delirium, she put her hands in Aubrey's and said shyly:

"I will do as you wish."

Aubrey turned to the clergyman, still holding Claudia's hand tightly clasped in his own.

"Marry us at once," he said.

The grave, sweet mouth of the clergyman relaxed into a smile at the young man's impetuosity.

"There must be a witness," he said.

"Of course, of course," said Aubrey, impatiently. Then he strode to the door and opened it.

A tall, slender figure in the dress of a nurse was gliding swiftly down the hall.

"Nurse, oh, nurse," called Aubrey.

Kitty Dangerfield, for it was she, turned at the words.

"Do you know Miss Wingate?" asked Aubrey, overtaking her.

"Slightly," returned Miss Dangerfield, curtly.

A Strange Witness

Aubrey felt rebuffed, but only for a moment. He told the girl of the sudden marriage and their desire for a witness to the ceremony.

"You shall never regret aiding Aubrey Heath in this," he said in his anxiety.

Miss Dangerfield wheeled upon him.

"Is your name Aubrey Heath? Why didn't you say so before? Take me to your bride."

The two walked down the corridor and into the waiting room. Bewildered by the rapid succession of events Claudia Wingate scarcely noticed the presence of Kitty Dangerfield, as she took her place beside her. Aubrey Heath took the cold little hand of his betrothed in his own and nodded to the clergyman.

And throughout the ceremony the three persons so strangely brought together stood close to each other with no premonition of the terrible net that would be woven around their lives ere they met again.

No, premonition? Ah, yes, in Kitty Dangerfield's active brain the seeds were already germinating which would some day spring into a upas tree of horror exuding its deadly breath upon Claudia Heath and those she held most dear.

"The trump card of all," murmured Kitty Dangerfield after Aubrey Heath had taken his trembling bride away. "Now, Francis Heath, it is my turn to dictate terms."

CHAPTER III.

The Bond of Hate.

CLAUDIA HEATH'S wedding day seemed merely a prelude to a series of strange scenes. For months she and her husband wandered through the pleasure resorts of the United States, then they settled in a pretty country home near Detroit. They were not rich, for, save a slender allowance absolutely settled upon Aubrey, the entire management of the Heath millions lay by bequest of the millionaire in the hands of his elder son.

And Francis Heath's attitude toward his younger brother's marriage was almost that of a maniac. He received the news—not from Aubrey—with an outburst of despairing hate that made his informant shrink back in alarm.

He puzzled Aubrey sorely by his attitude. Ostensibly Francis took the stand that the family was eternally disgraced by Aubrey's marriage to a nurse; a creature who toiled for her daily bread; but Aubrey felt that there was something more personal, more vital, in his disapproval.

While yet upon their wedding trip Aubrey and Claudia wrote a joint letter to Francis, apprising him of their marriage. His answer was directed to Claudia, and she opened it with a secret feeling of misgiving that was all too soon justified by the contents of the letter.

It was an outburst of rage, all seemingly directed against her. His brother was dismissed contemptuously with the words, "Poor fool, he little knows," but the epithets he heaped upon Claudia's defenceless head were worse.

Bitter Words!

"You unscrupulous daughter of a criminal father," wrote Francis, "who scarcely ceased listening to the confession of a dying father before entrapping with your devilish wiles my only brother; you little know what horror you have caused to break forth again in the family you have polluted by entering."

There were many pages to the letter, all in the same strain. Claudia would have almost believed them to be the ravings of a maniac but for a curious suggestion of sincerity all through them. One thing puzzled and terrified her. Not even to her husband had she confided the story of her father's deathbed. How had this man—her enemy, she instinctively felt—how had he found it out?

She judged also from the reading of the calmer portions of the letter that Francis had heard of their marriage even before the receipt of their joint letter.

"How does he know these things?" Claudia asked herself, terrified, and then in her terror and humiliation she wrote a pleading letter to Francis, asking his pardon for any harm she had unwittingly done and expressing her willingness to make any amends in her power.

A Wife's Terror

He made her no reply. Instead he began a series of petty persecutions of her husband that filled her with indignation. He withheld Aubrey's share of the estate, summoned him to successive stormy interviews in New York, wrote many cruel letters denouncing his brother for bringing a "wily and penniless nurse" into the family.

Aubrey listened to the interviews and read the letters for a time. Then he quietly ignored both and supplemented his allowance by becoming an assistant to a physician, an old friend of his father.

Aubrey Heath was intensely happy. He adored his wife and the two children, Pauline and Jack, who came to their home, were not less rapturously worshipped by their young father.

But the heart of the young wife and mother was eaten by the canker of humiliation and terror. Filled with misery at the persecution to which her young husband was subjected on her account, and feeling a certain gratitude to Francis because in all his letters to Aubrey he had never revealed the hidden secret of her father's death, Claudia, shortly after the birth of little Jack, wrote to Francis pleading again for herself and her great love and humbly endeavoring to bring about a reconciliation. She did not reveal her action to Aubrey.

Francis's reply was cruel and bitter, with taunts that aroused every spark of spirit in Claudia Heath's slender body.

Goaded by his sneers, her gentle spirit rebelled and she flamed forth in an indignant scorching letter.

Letter of Fate

"I shall never forgive you, never forget the indignity you have put upon me. Some day I shall make you suffer for it. You have aroused the hatred of a woman who only asked justice, who came in humble pleading to you. Beware, Francis Heath, there is a day of reckoning coming.

These were the words she wrote in the heat of her anger, words that she many times recalled with a flush of shame. If she had known where and how those words would confront her again!

The letter seemed, however, to bring Francis Heath to his senses. He did not answer the letter, but a month later he sent Aubrey a cordial invitation to bring his wife and children to the family mansion in New York and make an extended visit.

Aubrey, in complete ignorance of the correspondence between his wife and his brother, accepted the invitation. Claudia, who at first had kept the correspondence secret, hoping to surprise her husband with the reconciliation, had then been so ashamed of her angry letter that she had resolved never to tell Aubrey of it.

She was filled with forebodings concerning the visit, but she said nothing and prepared her children and herself for the journey.

To be Continued in Tomorrow's Boston American.

"The pleading tones, the loving looks and gestures won. Putting away from her the terrible heritage of her father's dying accusation of himself—a murderer—as but the delirium of a dying man, although something within her told her the words were more than delirium, she put her hands in Aubrey's and said slyly—'I will do as you wish'"

FRENCH POT ROAST

GET five or six pounds of any cheap cut as for an ordinary pot roast. With a slim, sharp knife, make four or five small deep incisions over it on both sides, and insert in each one one clove, a tiny piece of bacon the size of a dime, and the same of either onion or garlic, taking care to push them in securely. Fry out a couple of slices of pork in a spider, and in this brown one large or two small onions cut in slices. Remove onions to kettle and brown the meat on all sides in fat. Place meat on rack in kettle and add one and one-half cups canned tomato and the same of water, one small bay leaf, two cloves, salt and pepper. Have rack deep enough so liquor will not quite touch meat. Cook slowly, turning every hour for four or five hours, watching carefully that it does not burn and adding water as necessary. Remove to platter, strain and serve with macaroni or spaghetti. This is delicious either hot or cold.

MRS. H. PLUMMER.
Everett avenue, Dorchester.

SPONGE CAKE

ONE cup of sugar, one cup of flour, one teaspoonful of cream tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, pinch of salt. Sift together twice, then put into a mixing bowl. Make a hole in the centre and into it drop two eggs and one-half cup of milk. Beat the eggs and milk thoroughly, gradually working the flour and sugar into it until the whole is thoroughly beaten together and very smooth. Bake to cut into squares.

ECONOMY LEMON PIE

ONE cup sugar, one cup hot water, the grated rind of one lemon, also the strained juice; two heaping tablespoons cornstarch, wet with a little cold water. Cook three or four minutes, stirring all the time, then add piece of butter size of English walnut. When cool stir in the unbeaten yolk of one egg and fill. Make rich crust, put in deep pie plate and bake. This is delicious as well as economical.

FLORENCE BAILEY.
No. 48 Tuttle street, Dorchester.

MOUNTAIN CAKE

ONE cup of sugar, half cup butter, half cup milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, flavoring to suit.

GRANDMOTHER'S TEA CAKE.

One quart of flour, butter size of egg, one egg, one cup of sugar, one cup of currants, two teaspoons cream tartar, one of baking powder. Rub dry ingredients together; beat one egg in one pint of sweet milk and add; flavor to suit.

APPLE SNOW.

Eight large apples, one cup of white sugar, whites of three eggs. Beat all together three-quarters of an hour. Use lemon flavoring.

MRS. J. E. COX.
No. 52 Stanwood street, Roxbury.

TAPIOCA CREAM

BOIL in double boiler for 15 minutes one pint milk and one heaping tablespoon tapioca, stirring frequently; add one egg, well beaten, and mixed with one-half cup sugar. Stir constantly until it thickens. When cold, stir in a little whipped cream, and cover the whole with whipped cream sweetened and flavored. This is delicious.

HOW TO HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR

IN order to obtain or retain a beautiful head of hair it is necessary to observe scrupulous cleanliness.

Many people are under the delusion that frequent ablutions are bad for the hair, encourage dandruff and produce premature grayness.

Whereas, unless the scalp is thoroughly cleansed, dust clings to the oily secretion of the hair, and dandruff increases. The pores of the skin are thus blocked, and the young hairs are literally smothered alive.

For a Shampoo

The following method of shampooing is a most satisfactory one:

Divide about five cents' worth of powdered soap into three portions; with one of these make a lather with very hot water and apply to the head; rinse the hair and lather twice more. The last rinsing should leave the hair perfectly clean.

Dry the scalp thoroughly with hot towels and fan the hair briskly; on no account dry the hair before the fire.

Before dressing the hair rub a little brilliantine into the roots with the tips of the fingers, and brush with a baby brush. This makes the hair beautifully glossy and keeps it approximately tidy.

Some "Don'ts"

Don't forget to have the hair thoroughly cut and singed every three months; it is not sufficient to have long hair clipped. Special attention should be paid to the weak new hairs that spring up all along the central parting.

Don't forget to brush the hair for ten minutes every night with a flexible bristle brush. This may make the head a little tender at first, but the tenderness soon wears off.

Don't wear pads or additional tails of hair and curls unless absolutely necessary. Anything that prevents light and air getting at the roots of the hair is extremely bad.

Don't attempt to restore gray or faded hair yourself; it is best to leave it entirely alone. If dyeing is desirable have it done by skilled hands.

Don't use cheap hairpins or combs; they are so liable to drag and break the hair.

Laugh While You Eat, and Grow Fat

NO matter how strong the digestion may be naturally, it is no very difficult matter to weaken it, and, no matter how feeble it may be, it is always possible to do something to strengthen it.

A good digestion resembles many of the other blessings of life in this—it is seldom really valued until it is lost.

When people have for years adopted the foolish practice of bolting their food, without taking the trouble as to its proper mastication, they can hardly wonder that a new condition of things arises which cannot be cured in a few weeks.

If we treat our acquaintances badly, we quickly turn them into enemies, and, if our ill-treatment is long continued, it may be impossible, even by the best treatment, to regain their friendship.

It is much the same with our digestive apparatus. If we wish to be in good graces with it we must treat it with every possible consideration.

We must not expect it to do work it was never meant to do. The stomach is not provided with teeth; but it is provided, and so are the intestines, with certain juices, whose action converts food into a condition in which it will nourish and repair the tissues and renovate the blood and increase its quantity; but—and this is most important—in order to do this the food when it reaches the stomach must be in a "getatable" state. It must be in a soft, pulpy condition, so that the digestive juices can have a chance of reaching it.

This they cannot do properly if such things as meat, for instance, are swallowed in lumps.

For this reason those whose teeth are defective will find artificial teeth an immense help—indeed, a very important factor—in the prevention of dyspepsia.

Worry at meal times and hurry directly after are two great factors in weakening the digestion.

One of the most important meals of the day is breakfast, yet how often we hurry over our food, or scramble through it in stony, frigid silence, scanning the columns of our favorite newspaper.

An old physician, writing seventy years ago, said some words which are as true to-day as they were then.

"Laughter is one of the greatest helps to digestion with which I am acquainted, and the custom prevalent among our forefathers of exciting it at table by jesters was founded upon true medical principles.

"Therefore endeavor to have cheerful and merry companions at your meals; the nourishment you take then will certainly do good and tend to promote digestion."

CARE OF THE EYES

ON rising in the morning the eyes should be bathed gently in cold water—twenty passes are said to be decidedly strengthening. While using them closely they should be rested at intervals of an hour or two, for the strain of constant reading, etc., is like that of extending the arms at a certain height immovably. Imagine then the taxing of the eyes, which cannot complain, save after years of irreparable neglect.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. will sell you embroidered mull ties, just the thing to wear with the popular turn-over collar—25-cent values—for 12½ cents. These are dainty and you will be pleased with them.

A Dainty Over-Blouse

No. 5,797—Among the many pleasing styles shown for the popular over-blouse or "jumper" one of the daintiest as well as the most practical is the lingerie over-blouse. As shown in the illustration it is made of embroidered flouncing and is about the simplest and easiest of garments to make. The design is also suitable to be made of ribbon, and will be decidedly smart made of the wide Scotch plaid ribbon now so fashionable. It may be worn over a blouse of allover lace, net, China silk, crepe de chine or fine linen. For 36-inch bust measure 1½ yards of material 36 inches wide will be required.

No. 5,797—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents and the size, name and address to the BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass., allowing one week for delivery.

M'KAY-KEMBLE WEDDING SURE NEXT MONTH

Actor, Recovering from Operation, Being Nursed Back to Health by Fiancee.

WOULDN'T SEE FIRST WIFE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Charles Donald Mackay, an actor, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis, nursed by Miss Lillian Kemble, who has a leading part in "The Man of the Hour," in which Mr. Mackay also has had an important role. They are to be married next month, according to statements of their intimate friends.

Hearing that her former husband was ill, Mrs. Mackay, daughter of a wealthy Boston author and publisher, who obtained a divorce from Mr. Mackay two years ago, came to New York last week, sought to see him and effect a reconciliation, but was refused admittance to the house. The marriage and divorce of the Mackays were of sensational interest in Boston, where the wife was well known because of her family, and the husband because of his popularity as an actor.

Married Four Years Ago.

Mr. Mackay is about twenty-eight years old. He won the heart of the young daughter of Linn Boyd Porter of Boston, and four years ago they were married. Mr. Porter made a large fortune from the authorship and publication of the "Albert Ross" series of novels. Mr. Mackay was taking the juvenile parts with the Castle Square stock company when he met Miss Porter. She was seventeen years old and pretty.

Although there was objection to their marriage, it was overcome, and Mr. Mackay was welcomed to the home of his bride. Mr. Porter gave them a magnificent residence, and Mr. Mackay, retaining his place in the Castle Square company, was accustomed to ride nightly to the theatre in an expensive equipage, accompanied by his wife.

Dissension Soon Followed.

Dissension arose between the young couple about a year after their marriage and Mrs. Mackay finally obtained a divorce, having named an actress in the case.

This culmination of the romance was a severe shock, not only to the principals and to the wife's family, but to Mr. and P. F. Mackay, father of the actor, and his family. They have always held Charles D. Mackay's wife responsible for the troubles which led to their separation. ation

Latter's Radical Policies and Harriman Fiasco Lead to Wide Estrangement.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Washington is astounded at the news that Elihu Root, Secretary of State, has ceased to be the chief adviser and closest official friend of President Roosevelt. It is said that the Secretary's early retirement from the Cabinet is expected.

When Mr. Root became Secretary of State he became virtually the entire Cabinet. His opinion was asked on every question that arose. At Cabinet meetings he was always requested to give judgment on matters brought forward by any of his associates. Now Secretaries Taft and Cortelyou are the President's advisers.

The personal relations between the President and Mr. Root are not as intimate and confidential as they were. The daily horseback rides have ceased. Mr. Root still goes horseback riding, but alone.

The cause of the estrangement has not been fully divulged, but one suggestion is that Root became offended because the President privately recommended the nomination of Taft as his successor. Another suggestion is that the President did not like the lukewarm indorsement given by Root to his denunciation of Harriman and other railroad magnates.

Root urged the President not to give out the letter in which he characterized Harriman, Debs, Moyer and Haywood as "undesirable citizens." He considered it a tremendous blunder. He had previously counseled the President not to send the letter to Chairman Sherman, being apprehensive that it would sooner or later become public.

Mr. Root was greatly surprised when the President scattered broadcast an announcement of the alleged conspiracy among rich men to overthrow him and his policies.

Secretary Root is known to be out of tune with many of President Roosevelt's radical policies. He is inclined to conservatism, especially where wealthy men and corporations are concerned.

OFFICERS OF STEAMSHIPS PLAN STRIKE

Unless the coastwise steamship companies come to some agreement with their deck officers by to-morrow, the men will leave every steamer belonging to the lines affected.

Among the Boston lines that will be affected are the Merchants & Miners' Transportation Company and the Clyde Steamship Co.

The question is not one of recognition of the union, so the officers of the different harbors to which the men belong have agreed that the lines may treat directly with the men if they so desire. The Merchants & Miners' Line has, up to the present time, refused to confer with the men concerning their wage demands.

AGED GATEMAN GAVE LIFE TO SAVE BOY

BRAINTREE, April 28.—Standing at his post at the Elm street crossing, where he has been employed as gate tender for years, and even as he shouted warnings to three boys who were close beside the track of an approaching express, John Morley, who had no less than a dozen rescues to his credit, yesterday met death himself, the train striking him and crushing him under its wheels.

LILLIAN KEMBLE TO WED MACKAY

These two leading stage favorites, whose aproaching wedding is now definitely announced, are shown in the protograph as they recently appeared in "The Man of the Hour."

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

Notice to Labor Unions.

Secretaries of labor organizations which take action upon the Brockton Central Labor Union's request that a State mass meeting of labor men be called and that the legislative recess committee be ignored by organized labor, are requested to inform the Labor Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN and to send him copies of all resolutions adopted in relation to this matter.

May Day in Boston will find labor matters in a generally satisfactory condition, the teamster's strike, now on, and that of the garment workers, being the principal disputes. There will be a few new strikes declared, and early settlement is expected of such matters as are in dispute.

Reports from the principal industrial centres of the country indicate a large and well-met demand for both skilled and unskilled labor, due to the extensive private construction projects now under way, and the tunnels, railway terminals and other undertakings of a public or quasi-public nature.

This contentment is generally reflected and beyond a few localized and sporadic strikes the labor situation is regarded as brighter than for two years.

BARTENDERS PROSPEROUS.

John J. Sweeney, financial secretary treasurer of Boston Bartenders' Union, reported to that organization yesterday that the treasury contained $1,400 above the obligations of the union.

On appeal of Miss Luella Twining of Denver, representative in this city of the Western Federation of Miners, and Patrick Mahoney, former president of Boston Cigarmakers' Union No. 97, the members donated $100 to the defence fund of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone.

CLERKS ASK RAISE.

The new wage and working agreement requests of Boston & Maine Freight Clerks' Assembly 1793, K. of L., original, were reapproved yesterday. The desires are now being considered by Vice-President Lee of the road, and the men expect a favorable decision within a few days.

DRIVERS EXPECT RAISE.

Yesterday's meeting of Market and Commission House Teamsters' Union No. 631 was one of the largest of the season.

The wage and working demands which are to go into effect Wednesday were discussed at length. The main request is for a $1 increase on light single and light double teams, which will make the wages $13 and $15 respectively. There are about forty employers. No difficulty in reaching a satisfactory settlement is expected.

CITY WORKERS UNITE.

A Boston District Council of City Employes' Unions was permanently formed yesterday for mutual effort and protection.

The first action was to appoint a committee to wait on Mayor Fitzgerald and ask when the promised raise from $2 to $2.25 a day for city laborers is to be granted.

LONG TIME 'TWIXT DRINKS AT JAMESTOWN

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 29.—How a national tradition has just received a jolt from which it will never recover has just been related here. Every one is telling how, at Jamestown, Va., when Governor Woodruff of Connecticut at the Exposition introduced the Governor of North Carolina to the Governor of South Carolina, and the customary salutation was exchanged, both men were laughingly startled to find that they were prohibitionists, and that it would be indeed a long time between drinks.

Governor Woodruff was more surprised than either of the southern executives, for he was eagerly expecting to see the acting in flesh and blood of the time-honored tradition. Mr. Woodruff feels that the joke is on him.

SHIPS BARELY AVOID COLLISION IN FOG

Off Nauset, in a thick fog, yesterday, the United Fruit Company's steamer Admiral Sampson suddenly came upon a three-masted schooner almost under her bows. Captain Henshaw of the steamer quickly swung her hard to port and the two craft brushed each other in passing, but without damage.

PEARY ASKS FOR $60,000 TO REACH POLE

NEW YORK, April 29.—Lack of $60,000 to finance the expedition may mean the abandonment of the dash to the North Pole which Commander Robert E. Peary planned for this Summer.

"This is a work which I must do—a work, a great work—for which I was intended," said Commander Peary.

"Remember, we were but 174 nautical miles from the goal on our last trip. It would be a pity indeed if we could not try again."

Peary wants to start from New York the latter part of June. His ship, the Roosevelt, which proved her worth on the last expedition, is now being prepared for the next attack on the northern ice fields. But the greater part of the $40,000 already subscribed will be spent in repairing the boat, and $60,000 more will be needed for general expenses. The Peary Artic Club is caring largely for the refitting of the Roosevelt and it has issued an appeal for funds from the people of the United States so that a total of $100,000 may be raised.

$50,000 BLAZE IN PORTLAND FACTORY

PORTLAND, Me., April 29.—Damage of about $50,000 was caused by a fire in the Portland Cooperage Company yesterday on Commercial street. The blaze was highly spectacular and was watched by a throng of 3,000 people.

HUB SLEUTHS GUARD HOME OF DEFAULTER

Levi Cook Lincoln, Woonsocket Power Manager, Watched, but Not Arrested.

FEAR TO PAY HIS BOND

WOONSOCKET, R. I., April 29.—It was learned to-day that private detectives from Boston are guarding the home of Levi Cook Lincoln, the defaulting general manager of the Woonsocket Electric & Power Company. Lincoln, who has confessed to a shortage of $92,000, has not yet been arrested, and although two detectives are constantly on guard at his house there is no indication that he will be placed in custody.

The detectives are employed by the electric company.

The officers of that company expect to hear to-day from the Baltimore office of the bonding company which is upon Lincoln's bond for $10,000 as to whether that company intends to cause his arrest.

Final Action Friday.

On Friday the stockholders of the electric company will meet to take final action upon the proposed sale of the company to the Estabrook syndicate of Boston.

Mr. Lincoln has given up hope that his friends will come to his rescue. In a telephone conversation with one of them yesterday he offered his reproaches. His friends figure that it would be useless to raise the $10,000 for which he was bonded.

Fear to Pay Bond.

If that was paid the Eliot National Bank of Boston, which holds a forged note of $5,000, might force an arrest, and even if $15,000 was raised to pay both the surety company and the bank, his friends receive no assurance that the electric light company stockholders will not prosecute and send Mr. Lincoln to jail, and thus their money would have been spent fruitlessly.

There has been more or less criticism as to why an arrest has not been made before this time. One of the directors of the company stated yesterday that there are so many parties interested and since there has been an absolute impossibility of Mr. Lincoln geting away, that it was not necessary to make an arrest until an understanding had been arrived at between the various parties who have suffered losses because of Mr. Lincoln's wrongdoings.

K. OF C. THRONG ORPHEUM FOR CLUB BENEFIT

State and City Officials and Knights From Far and Near to Attend.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, many city officials and a number of State officers, Senators, Representatives and members of the Governor's staff are to be present tonight in the Orpheum Theatre, where Mt. Vernon Council, Knights of Columbus of Dorchester, will have charge if the regular performance for the benefit of the building fund of the Columbus Club.

In addition to the city and State officials a big delegation of Knights from various sections of the State are to be present, headed by the following men: State Deputy Daniel F. Buckley of Easton, Secretary W. J. O'Brien of Boston, Chaplain James M. Supple of Charlestown, Treasurer Henry E. Hagan of Dorchester and Auditor Robert Thomas of Marlboro.

The committee in charge of the entertainment is composed of Walter J. Burke, chairman; Grand Knight John Elder, Deputy Grand Knight James H. Baldwin, Recording Secretary A. J. Gleason and Chancellor William A. Hawley, all of Mt. Vernon Council.

CAPTURE KING OF BLACK HAND

NEW YORK, April 29.—The "King of the Black Hand" has at last been run to earth, according to Detective Petrosini, head of the Italian bureau. Pietro Pampinnelli, a fruit dealer, arrested today, is the man. Pampinnelli, the officers declare, has been the brains of the secret society, which has levied blackmail on scores of Italians and kidnapped many children.

Pampinnelli was taken after a hard fight. With him was arrested his wife. Pampinnelli is an educated man.

THEATRE TRUST GETS TREMONT

The Tremont Theatre of this city, by the incorporation in New Jersey of the United States Amusement Company by Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts, which was to have gone into the Klaw & Erlanger combination the first of next September, is merged in a trust taking over a vast majority of the theatres in America.

The new company will confine itself chiefly to vaudeville, which may mean that the Tremont will no longer be identified with regular theatrical productions. Along with the Tremont the new trust takes the Grand Opera House in Brooklyn, the New Forrest Theatre in Philadelphia, the New York Theatre in New York—all Klaw & Erlanger houses—and acquires from the Shuberts and their associates theatres in Springfield and Worcester and many other cities.

The new company is capitalized at $1,000,000, all of which is subscribed. A. L. Erlanger is the president.

The Tremont will likely remain under the same management.

FORMER STAGE FAVORITE DIES

NEW YORK, April 29.—Maude Harrison, the actress, and a former member of the Daly forces, while alone in her apartments at the Hotel Willard, was stricken with paralysis and died a few hours later. She was fifty-one years old and a sister of Louis Harrison, the actor.

Five years ago she retired from the stage in order to devote her time to the care of an aged and feeble mother.

She was a great Boston and New England favorite.

PRIEST SCORES CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In the course of a sermon of "Sin" yesterday, Rev. Fr. Flint at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Dorchester, criticized Christian Science.

"Your ideal should be the Christ who suffered and died on the cross to save mankind," said the preacher, "and not the Christ of a 'Mother Eddy,' who tells us that suffering is all imaginary—a make-believe."

MOTHERHOOD

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

With much of their high spirits vanished by reason of their defeats at the hands of the Washingtons, the New York Highlanders, headed by their clever leader, Clarke Griffith, arrived here to-day for a four-game series with the Pilgrims. The visitors are in pretty good shape, but they don't expect to do any better than break even in the Hub.

When the teams clashed last the Boston Americans were not able to win a game, but they have had plenty of ginger infused in them since then, as pleasantly demonstrated last Saturday, and they should make it lively for the Gothamites.

After Thursday's game the Bostons will beat it for Washington, where they will endeavor to make the Senators loosen up with at least a brace of victories, and then they will "do" the West, and it will be about a month in all before the Hub will be able to see them perform again.

Since the appointment of Bob Unglaub as captain the Bostons seem to be filled with more confidence. Sir Robert will now try his hardest to develop team work, which has been woefully lacking for many months.

Manager Huff believes that he has as good material as any club in the league, and is certain that with the proper development the team will climb and fight for a good place in the first division.

The fans will flock to the Huntington avenue grounds to see the locals and Highlanders in the present series. Walter Clarkson, the former Harvard twirler, and Oberlin will probably be the pitchers used to-day by the rival teams, if the weather permits a game.

PROFESSIONAL DRIVERS FORM NEW ASSOCIATION

Inside of thirty days a new turf body, called the International Racing Association, will be open for business in competition with the two parent bodies, the National and American trotting associations.

The addition of the new body is the result of meetings the past Winter held jointly by the Professional Trotting Horse Drivers' Mutual Benefit and Protective Association and the secretaries and representatives of various race tracks.

For years there has been repeated complaints from professional drivers that they failed to get a fair show from either the National or American trotting associations when before them with racing cases for trial and judgment.

In order to overcome this fault they petitioned the two parent turf bodies to permit of a professional driver being elected or appointed on the board of reviews, which twice yearly hear all of the turf disputes of the previous six months. Their demand was entirely ignored.

Track Officials and Drivers.

It is the intention of the International Racing Association to make up its committees from among the race track officials and the drivers; thus each division of the sport will be represented.

With the faults of the National and American trotting associations to guide them, the International feels certain they will cause the older bodies in turf legislation to look to their laurels.

Race drivers openly say that it cannot fail to become the most powerful organization of its kind in this country, for, with the combination of the drivers and the track secretaries their strength can overcome all competitors.

That the new association will have great opposition is assured, but with the support of the professional drivers, who are duty bound to assist the child of their own creation, a square fight for supremacy must ultimately result in their favor. The motto of the International is a fair deal for drivers, owners and track managers, and no boycotting, with all cases tried in the open, not in secret session.

The new turf body has applied for a charter under the laws of Pennsylvania, as the headquarters and main offices will be in Philadelphia.

Some thirty tracks have promised to join the International, while fully a hundred more are ready to enter the fold when the charter is secured and officials are elected to manage affairs.

One friendly to the National Trotting Association had the following to say regarding the new turf body:

Didn't Get Fair Deal, the Claim.

"Primarily, of course, the International Racing Association was instigated by the drivers out of what they conceive to be a failure to receive justice and fair play in the rulings of the Board of Review and Appeal.

"How much justification there is for resort to such an extreme course may be, however, a matter of grave doubt. There have undoubtedly been cases in which the Board of Review's interpretations of the rules have failed to accord a proper consideration to the rights of the drivers, but that that body as a whole, or that any individual member of that body, past or present, has deliberately and purposely withheld justice from the drivers—or anybody else—when the evidence before them clearly revealed the course of law and equity, I do not believe.

"There have been incompetent men upon the Board of Review, who should not have been placed there, but none that we have ever known who was positively perfidious and dishonest."

Principal Bouts Carded This Week

TO-NIGHT.

National amateur championships (trial bouts), Mechanics building.

Frank Carsey vs. Bert Keyes, Newcastle, Penn.

TUESDAY.

National championships (final bouts).

WEDNESDAY.

Tommy Murphy vs. Tony Bender, New York.

FRIDAY.

Tommy Murphy vs. Kid Stinger, Sheepshead Bay, N. Y.

Young Corbett vs. Kid Sullivan, Baltimore.

SATURDAY.

Freddie Weeks vs. Tommy O'Toole, Philadelphia.

Some good sport is promised at Mechanics building to-night and to-morrow night, when the national amateur championship bouts will be contested under the auspices of the B. A. A. A large entry list has been received, and there will be something doing every minute. To-night the "prelims" will be fought, and the semi-finals and finals to-morrow night.

John Henderson, who recently won out in the 135-pound class, is the only one of the New England champions who has failed to enter.

The officials for the tournament will be: Peter Kelley, Boston, referee; Neil Doherty and Edward Hopkins, B. A. A., judges; Alfred Lill, Jr., St. Joseph A. A., and H. O. Von Schuckmann, B. A. A., timers; Harry Hodgkins, B. B. Osthues, Frank X. McGrath, James J. Hallahan and Daniel J. Leonard, weighers; George V. Brown, B. A. A., manager; Jerry Corkery, announcer, and John L. Behnke, B. A. A., marshal.

BUCK FREEMAN GOES TO MINORS

COLUMBUS, April 29.—Buck Freeman, recently released to the Washingtons by the Boston Americans, has been sent to the Minneapolis Club, and will report here to-day for the game with the local team, according to an announcement made by Manager Mike Cantillon of the Millers.

ALTHOUGH HE HAS NO MATCH IN VIEW

SQUIRES IS TRAINING HARD

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—This Bill Squires affair has a humorous side to it. The Australian is in the full swing of preparation over at Shannon's resort, near San Rafael, and yet has no particular match or date in view.

He is training against time as it were. He is trying out the California climate and if it treats him kindly he may be able to inform the promoters within a week or two how soon he will consider it safe to accept his first ring engagement.

So far as can be judged Squires is not worrying about public opinion or percentages or purses or anything in that line. His first care apparently is to be sure that Bill Squires is as formidable in California as in Australia. He does not care how many holidays and how many chances of big gates may pass. He wants to feel that he is all there and then he will be content to take things as they come.

It has been suggested that as Squires is such a thoroughly unknown quantity he should submit to a trying out before asking the public to purchase tickets for his first engagement. It has been instanced that most of the Australian fighters who came here were tested before being placed in the ring.

The fact that most of the Australian fighters came here unheralded is lost sight of. They landed here without any particular recommendation and they had to submit to the trying-out process to prove that they were worthy of engagements.

Squires is indorsed by the Australian sporting press as the undisputed champion of that far country. He has for a backer one of the wealthiest sporting men at the antipodes and he has traveled to this country in style befitting an acknowledged champion. Before he was many hours here, he planked down $5,000 and challenged the winner of the Burns-O'Brien fight, the nearest thing to a world's championship contest in sight at present. Barney Reynolds, his manager, made it clear that this money is means for a wager. There is no stipulation that if Burns or O'Brien is favorite over Squires the money forwarded by Bookmaker Wren is to receive the benefit of providing odds. The $5,000 held by the Examiner is a side bet that Squires will defeat the winner of the Burns-O'Brien fight. It is up to be bet, dollar against dollar, and on the score that money talks it is conclusive proof that Australians think they are sending us a pretty good ring man.

All things considered it looks as though Squires can scoff at the proposition that he consent to be tried out—at least until his $5,000 are covered.

Squires a Stranger Here.

Squires is as much a stranger to the writer as he is to the other American sportsmen who met him on his arrival and who have seen him at work since, but I am free to confess that he has impressed me favorably. He has the regulation "scrapper's dial," to wit, the square jaw, the determined mouth and the deep set eyes. I don't believe I ever saw a piece of human fighting machinery in which there was so little waste material. I'll be bound that when seen in action he will show that he is quick, relentless and hard hitting.

There is just one thing I am wondering about and I guess I'll have to see Bill Squires deep in the actual turmoil of a scrap before I can glean any information on the point. I'd like to know who he assimilates. I can see by his looks that he is game to the core and that he has great driving power. I imagine he will be as quick as a cat on his feet.

But his earmarks are the earmarks of a fellow who jumps close and invites trouble and I'd like to know how he bears the brunt of bruising exchanges.

We have had hard punchers in this country—men like Peter Maher and Joe Choynski, for instance—who could inflict terrible punishment, but who could not bear comparitvely light taps in return. Fighters with glass jaws, the slang-mongers call them. If Squires jaw is as durable as Tom Sharkey's used to be and if he has the faculty of pulling himself together and sailing in again after receiving a numbing smash I can see all kinds of trouble ahead for the American heavies who stand between the Australian and the world's championship.

Nolan O'Brien's Manager.

The latest is that Billy Nolan has taken Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia under his wing. Well, assuming that O'Brien had to have a manager he might have gone further and fared worse. It is common property that it was Nolan who skipped down to Los Angeles and made the O'Brien-Burns contest possible. Just what passed between Billy and Promoter McCarey will never be given out for publication probably, but the whole business was in such a tangle that it needed a third party to straighten matters out. O'Brien claimed that McCarey was derelict with a $10,000 guarantee. McCarey said that the articles called for nothing of that kind and Burns sided with McCarey.

It was at this stage that O'Brien decided that he needed a manager.

Nolan went to Los Angeles and now O'Brien is there. McCarey has given out a thorough understanding has been reached and that the fight will positively take place.

The Sullivan twins are a power in pugilism just at present. Not so long ago Jack made short work of Jack Palmer of England, who came here with world's championship aspirations, and now Mike has stopped the gallop of Honey Mellody, who seems to be the one and only rival of California Joe Thomas for welterweight honors.

Somehow Jack's victory over the Englishman hasn't brought him much in the matchmaking line, but it is as sure as daylight that Mike and Thomas will be the next big card in the 145-pound division. And it will be a fight worth witnessing when it does take place.

The pugilistic situation in San Francisco is still enshrouded in fog, and as far as can be learned the supervisors are in no hurry to ladle out permits. Some people say that six months may go by before a twenty-round match is arranged in this city.

"Pug" Situation Foggy.

In the meantime there will be plenty of stir at Colma according to report. Jimmy Coffroth is the sole trader in that region and he is going right ahead with the erection of a daylight arena in which he intends to pull off important events on holidays and Saturday afternoons.

Coffroth sees numbers of good matches in sight now. He wants to bring Squires and the O'Brien-Burns winner together on May 30 (Decoration Day), and if anything goes wrong with that attraction he will fall back upon either Jimmy Britt or George Memsic or Joe Thomas and Mike Sullivan. The new arena will be two miles nearer San Francisco than the site of the Battling Nelson-Jimmy Britt pavilion, and Coffroth says the street car service will be equal to the handling of big crowds.

Tex Rickard has offered $40,000 for a fight at Ely between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson, and it looks as though a bid of that character should catch the men if there is a mutual desire to get together and show the public who is really the better man.

Nolan, it is said, will not take notice of the offer until it is made officially, and a rumor comes from the East that Gans is willing to knock under to Nelson and weigh 133 in fighting rig.

If Gans has made this concession the fight will be regarded with suspicion. Gans at 133 pounds in costume is a weakling and cannot give a proper account of himself. All the kids in the world will not sweeten the match in the eyes of the public until it is announced Gans will be allowed to enter the ring at a weight that will insure him putting up the best fight he is capable of.

Incidentally the opinion prevails that Nelson has no desire to tackle Gans a second time.

ENGLISH CHAMP NOW WANTS TO PLAY GOULD

LONDON, April 29.—Eustace H. Miles, the holder of the court tennis championship, has reconsidered his decision not to defend his title, and says that, owing to pressure from friends, he will now, if no objection is offered, practice hard for a week and do his best to defend the championship by playing the winner of the semi-final round of the tournament now in progress next Saturday or Monday. The semi-final is to be played Friday, and the winner of it, by reason of Miles's default, was to be declared champion.

Jay Gould, the American player, who has reached the semi-final stage, in an interview to-day expressed considerable annoyance at this sudden change in Miles's plans. He said he came here expressly to meet Miles, but as the champion had declined to play he had accepted the situation and arranged to leave England immediately after the last game is played next Friday. This new situation would upset all his plans. He had not yet made up his mind whether he would meet Miles and would take a week to ponder on the question. Then he would either decide to return to London and enter a contest with him or scratch to the champion.

Yale Varsity Crew to Race Middies Saturday

NEW HAVEN, April 29.—The Yale varsity crew will start the campaign of 1907 next Saturday with the race on the Severn against the Middies, and Captain Ide has picked his eight as follows for the event:

Stroke, Griswold; No. 7, Ide; No. 6, Howe; No. 5, Taft; No. 4, Hoppin; No. 3, Bromar; No. 2, Boulton, and bow, Auchincloss.

Yale has hitherto sent her second crew to Annapolis, but this season will enter the varsity, although the eight, as made up, includes only two veterans of last year's shell—Boulton and Captain Ide—and Boulton has been displaced from stroke, the seat in which he rowed last year. Howe was in the freshman shell last season, but during the Summer suffered the loss of part of his right thumb in a buzzsaw and feared till a few weeks ago that he would be unable to row again this season. Coach Kennedy has rigged up a method for enabling him to retain hold on his oar.

Taft Given a Trial.

Walbridge Taft, nephew of Secretary of War Taft, will be given a trial at No. 5, although he failed to make his freshman crew two years ago. Hoppin, who was in the varsity four last year, will be presented at No. 4, and Bromar, a substitute last season, will get in at No. 3. The veteran Boulton, stroke last year, will be found at No. 2. He exchanged seats with Griswold, No. 2, last week, and Griswold has shown ability to keep the stroke high which Boulton never possessed. Captain Ide will be found in his former seat at No. 7, and Auchincloss, a substitute last year, will be given bow.

The crew, as made up, shows more power than the boat a year ago, but its watermanship is poor, at times even ragged. To get the novices accustomed to racing the oarsmen have decided to enter the American Henley May 25. Indications are that Yale will meet both Harvard and Cornell in this regatta.

New Stroke Oar.

Griswold, the new stroke oar, was a substitute last season. He is a brother of Griswold, '99, and he has kept the stroke all the past week three to four points higher than Boulton has been able to do.

Captain Ide's policy of plenty of work is being continued, and the oarsmen have been told to be ready to cover the four-mile course a couple of times a week till the oarsmen leave this city for their training quarters at New London June 6. To get the oarsmen accustomed to racing it was decided to enter the crews at both Annapolis and on the Schuylkill.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Bent on revenge for the terrible four-game beating they recently received at the hands of the Giants, the Doves flew into town to-day. The Hub flock is determined to win the entire three games scheduled in this burg and then they will make their flight to Boston, where they hope to have everything their own way for about a month.

The Boston team is in the best of shape these days. On their present trip they won two games and tied a thirteen inning affair with the Brooklyns, and have beaten the Quakers, which is certainly going some for any team on the road.

Manager Tenney is very much pleased with the way his team is playing.

"If the boys keep up their good work," said Fred to-day, "I don't see anything that will keep us out of the first division this season."

Vive Lindaman is carded to twirl for the visitors to-day, while Leon Ames will probably work for the home team.

NONE REACH FIRST IN GAME AT FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Fred Brown, pitching for Sacramento against Stockton, established a new world's record in baseball when he let the Stockton team down without a hit or run and without a Stockton man reaching first base in a ten-inning game in the California State League series yesterday. Sacramento won, 1 to 0.

PIANO TRUST STILL FIGHTING US

Because we will not agree to keep up their high prices on pianos. At present the law seems to be with us. Nothing has yet been legally done to stop us selling at any old price. While we have a piano to dispose of we will enter it in our weekly sacrifice sale—Piano Trust or no Piano Trust.

In the past week many excellent piano values were given. Some of the finest upright pianos were sold at startlingly low prices. This week's lot is a trifle larger and better on account of the nature of the sale, it being a storage salesroom sale, new and second hand pianos of the best makers are sacrificed—the prices are made subject to conditions which do not include any agents' commissions, sellers' commissions or any additional profit to the storage salesroom whatever. In sales like these some one's loss is your gain. The profit is all yours—the finest instruments of the world's best makers are in the sacrifice list.

HEAVY HORSES CHEAP, $50 UPWARDS.

$150 BUYS GOLDIE.

THIS is the handsomest horse in Boston, golden chestnut in color, silver mane and tail, weighs 1,000 lbs., 6 years old, has the conformation, style and action necessary for a high-class horse, is thoroughly broken, well mannered, accustomed to all city sights, is a pure-gaited, level-headed trotter; this horse was trained 6 weeks last season and showed miles in 2:20, is a free, easy roadster of 10 miles an hour, has a velvet mouth, and can be driven with perfect safety by lady or most timid person; would be cheap at $250 to anyone wanting a safe, reliable horse. 120 Dover st.

$150 BUYS FAMILY OUTFIT.

CONSISTING of bay horse, 8 years old, weighs 1,050 lbs., natural roadster of 10 miles an hour, can step a mile in 2:42 to a wagon, is a strongly built, compactly made horse, has perfect feet and legs, is fat and handsome, very stylish in harness, accustomed to all kinds of cars and autos, stands anywhere without hitching or weight; also a r.-t. runabout buggy, nearly new, elegant Swiss breastplate harness with English bit, double russet reins, whips, robes, street and stable blankets; this team has been used by a prominent man's wife and children, who has met with business reverses within the past month and is obliged to part with this as well as other luxuries, who can be referred to; this team originally cost $350. 120 Dover st.

DRIVING HORSES.

WE HAVE ANOTHER consignment of horses from a well-known trainer who is unable to train this season because of ill health, and these horses must be disposed of at once, no reasonable offer refused; this is a rare lot to choose from, consisting of some well-matched pairs, stylish cobs, and several that can step very fast; any gentleman or lady looking for a high-class horse at a low price will do well to call and examine this lot; please ask to be shown Mr. R.'s horses, prospective buyers will receive courteous treatment; these horses are sold under a full guarantee and 30 days' trial allowed; remember, the price of these horses is less than broken-down old nags you might buy at auction. 120 Dover st.

Men Don't Half Appreciate What Woman Has Done

We Purpose to Repeat the Fact Often

Humanity is divided into two sections, and the female half is by far the better, from beginning to end.

A girl baby is better than a boy baby. The girl is easier to bring up, and has many other superior qualities.

A little girl is much more worth while than a little boy. The girl behaves herself, she has a conscience and an instinct of obedience from the start.

A young woman is less conceited than a young man. She has self-denial where he has self-assertion.

An old woman is more placid, calm, philosophically resigned to conditions than an old man. It is always the old man talking about how much better things were when he managed them, not the old woman.

We say, and shall say often, that women are better than men, that they have greater natural power, mental, temperamental, and sentimental. They are not appreciated by arrogant, vain men for many reasons. One reason is that woman's great work is CREATIVE WORK. She creates the next generation, and stupid men, while praising other men that have reached high positions, FORGET THE MOTHER THAT MADE THE MAN.

Women fail to get the appreciation which is their due, also, because men as a rule are ignorant of the past, ignorant as to the real part that woman has played in the world's history. They do not know that they owe their civilization to women. They forget that when stupid men with bloody wars decimated humanity, WOMAN HAS SUPPLIED MEN TO TAKE THE PLACE OF THE MURDERED. And when stupid men, through disease brought on by filth or famine, have died off, women again have supplied the deficiency and put humanity back to its fighting numbers.

Often readers write rebuking us for praising women so much.

Many declare, apparently in good faith, that woman is inferior to man and that man has done all the world's GREAT work.

We invite such readers to consider the following statement by Reclus, one of the greatest historians, most profound and accurate thinkers that has ever lived:

> "It is to woman, I think, that mankind owes all that has made us men. Burdened with the children and the baggage, she erected a permanent cover to shelter the little family; the nest for her brood was, perhaps, a ditch carpeted with moss; by the side of it she set up a pole with large leaves laid across; and, when she thought of fastening three or four of these poles together by their tops, the hut was invented—the hut, the first interior. She laid the firebrand with which she never parts, and the hut became illuminated, the hut was warmed, the hut sheltered a hearth. * * * Notwithstanding the doctrine which holds sway at present, I maintain that woman was the creator of the primordial elements of civilization."

This brief picture of woman's work as the creator of the home, puts her far above the primitive man whose principal occupation was DESTROYING HOMES.

Women fought constantly for the children. Woman, as Reclus says, was the human being that gave man control of fire. We learn from Darwin that the monkeys, although they will sit around the fire and watch it die out, have never learned to do so much as add a stick of wood to keep it going. That is lucky for us, by the way, as otherwise they would have burned the world's forests before we got here.

It was primitive, half-savage woman that took care of the fire. She learned at first that the wild animals feared it. She took care to have it around so as to frighten them away and protect her young ones.

After awhile she found out that the fire was good to warm the children as well as to scare away bears and wolves. Later she cooked with it, and still later MEN MADE IRON AND STEEL WEAPONS OUT OF IT. AND MURDERED MORE EFFECTIVELY THAN EVER. That was usually THEIR contribution to civilization.

Woman made the home, she domesticated the animals, she learned how to grind the grain into flour, she cultivated the early grain, developing out of weeds all the grains we have now, LONG BEFORE HISTORY BEGAN TO BE WRITTEN.

Men praise one another, but they haven't the slightest idea of the extraordinary superiority of women to men., Every soldier has his medal and his stripes, and the occasional soldier has his big monument. We praise their courage, we love them for the pain they have suffered.

BUT EVERY WOMAN THAT EVER BROUGHT A CHILD INTO THE WORLD HAS SUFFERED MORE THAN ANY SOLDIER EVER SUFFERED, and every mother is better entitled to a monument than any prancing bronze gentleman on a war horse with a long tail.

It does men good occasionally to think of what woman represents in this life, of the example she sets, of the marvellous creative work she does, of her wonderful services in the past when men were brutes, and when women alone brought civilization forward by encouraging the decent side of human nature.

We expect to remind our readers of these facts often. Some perhaps may deny the authority of Reclus quoted above. At present there lives near Boston, a colored clergyman who denies the authority of Galileo. This colored clergyman says that Galileo was wrong, and that the earth isn't round, and he could prove it, if we would only give him a chance.

One Garden

By Morton Birge

A COMMUTER, optimistic, living in Jamaica Plain,
Marked a little garden spotlet in his yard.
Every evening after working, soon as he was home again,
Then he digged his little garden very hard.
And he bought loam by the bushel for to help the native earth,
And he added fertilizer unto that,
And he bought some fancy nettings and he worked all he was worth,
Fencing out the neighbor's doggie and the cat.
Then he spent his hard-earned money for some vegetable seeds—
And the pictures on the envelopes were great,
Then he bought a hoe and rake and things a garden spotlet needs,
Then his bill was nineteen-sixty-four to date.
So he planted all the seedlets in the spotlet he had dug,
And he waited for the seedlets for to sprout,
But some weedlets hit the garden, with eight million kinds of bug,
And they nearly had the garden down and out.
Then he fought the bugs and weedlets and he worked himself to death,
And he hardly took the time to eat or sleep,
But the enemy got busy every time he stopped for breath,
Till the garden was enough to make you weep.
And the total net achievement in the vegetable line
That he gathered for his labor and his means
Were an undersized tomato of a brand marked "Superfine"
And a scanty half-a-pint of buggy beans.
Now the fellow ain't a digging in his garden any more,
For he learned his little lesson very well,
And the vegetable huckster stops each morning at the door,
For he finds it is a likely place to sell.

Is Evolution a Scientific Fact?

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

THE pastor of a prominent Boston church requests an answer to the following communication:

> Dear Sir—You asserted in one of your articles that Evolution had come to be more than a theory of philosophy; it had become a fixed fact in science.
>
> As I have been studying this theory of philosophy for many years, I was greatly interested in what you had to say, and I will be under great obligations to you if you will cite one fact in science which establishes the fact of evolution.
>
> If you will thus accommodate me I shall thank you heartily. I know a great many facts which hint at the theory, but up to the present I have not been able to overtake a single fact which establishes the fact of Evolution.

Were the writer of the above letter other than the learned and eloquent pastor, I know I might be tempted to think that his idea of Evolution was somewhat cloudy.

Such, certainly, is the case with a great many people.

Of course, the author of the letter knows that Evolution is a Process, not an Agent—the Mode or Manner according to which things are brought to pass, not the Power that brings them to pass.

Broadly speaking, Evolution is the theory that from the beginning the movement of things has been an upward one—advancement rather than retrogression; creation, in all its phases, becoming, with the passing centuries and ages, a finer and still finer affair.

When I say, then, that Evolution has become a fact, I simply mean that the one-time theory is now a scientific demonstration.

Science—that is to say, the unquestionable knowledge which we have gained of Nature's operations—proves that the order of the day, on all sides, has ever been a progressive one, the superior ever succeeding the inferior, the latest even being the finest.

This fact, it seems to me, no intelligent person can for a moment think of doubting.

In every department of scientific thought the fact looms up large and distinct, and the scientific student can no more miss seeing it than the traveller to the Pyramids can miss seeing the stupendous piles of masonry towering above him.

But this does not mean that Evolution is all—that God is eliminated, and that matter and forces are all that are to be considered.

As already intimated, Evolution is simply the statement of the Method of Nature. The method may be the expression of the operation of matter and its forces, to the exclusion of any directing mind, or it may be the expression of such operation plus the directing mind.

If Evolution is "continuous, progressive change, according to certain laws, and by means of resident forces," may it not turn out to be possible that among the "resident" forces is to be found the Supreme Mind, of whose will and intelligence the "laws" and the "progressive changes" are merely the reflection?

The Woman Who Ignores Health, Beauty and Grace Can Never Hope to Win Public Opinion

A YOUNG woman with a voice such as one might think would chant the anthems of joy before the heavenly cherubim finds it hard to make a place for herself.

Others with less volume, less beauty of tone and less perfection of technique obtain positions she fails to secure.

But the young singer has ignored many other requisites for success which are necessary to a singer besides voice.

She has ignored health, beauty and grace.

Endowed with beautiful lines and well-chiseled features and harmonious proportions which might easily make her beautiful, she is devoid of color, animation and curves.

She lacks blood and flesh.

She has the appearance of an anemic and suggests a poor digestive apparatus.

Quarts of fresh milk and three or four raw eggs each day, with fresh fruit and no other food, would give her the blood and flesh necessary to her type.

She lacks deportment and grace.

Lacks Distinction

SHE stands badly and sits and walks without distinction.

She gives no thought to these matters.

To cultivate her voice, to keep a clean record, to despise everything base and low and false, and to try with might and main to make the world recognize her voice and her worth of character she believes will insure her success finally.

But the world wants its eye and its sense of harmony pleased as well as its ear and its ideals of moral excellence.

No woman before the public gaze, dependent in truth upon the public gaze for her success, as is every musical and dramatic genius, can afford to omit beauty, grace and tasteful dress from her repertoire of attractions.

No woman in any sphere of action can afford to ignore these things without loss to herself and her cause.

Even the religious devotee, who wears a robe of some order, must see that its appointments are neat and fresh before submitting herself to the gaze of the world or entering on her round of duties.

It is quite possible that this particular young woman made greater progress in her musical studies because she shut away from her thoughts while studying every idea and purpose save that of perfecting her voice.

How to Be Pleasing

BUT now that to please the world must be a powerful factor in her success she must consult its fancies and cater to its tastes.

It is not a difficult matter for any woman not a monstrosity at birth to be pleasing to the eye. Here are some things she must do: To live simply in the matter of food; to keep the body nourished, but to avoid over-eating; to bathe the body every day thoroughly, yet not to weaken it by prolonged baths, as so many American women do; to keep the muscles of the face firm by massage, and the cuticle softened and refined by simple creams; to fill the lungs with pure air many times a day by deep inhalations; to sleep with open windows; to stand, walk and sit with head and chest erect and the lower half of the body in subjection to the upper; to carry a picture of beauty and youth in the mind constantly as an ideal; to put away despondent and fault-finding and jealous and angry thoughts from the mind as fast as they arrive; and to dwell as briefly as possible upon the repulsive traits of humanity and as long as possible upon the beautiful and noble qualities to be found in humanity; to study one's own type, as one would study a picture before framing it, and to select the colors and fashions accordingly.

This requires no more outlay of money with a limited income than a haphazard method of choosing one's garments.

I have seen a woman look like a corner of a Greek frieze when her gown was only a bit of inexpensive scrim; but it was fashioned to suit her form and its simplicity gave her distinction. And I have seen another look hideous in an expensive imported robe unsuited to her.

Before the young woman with the voice censures the world for its lack of appreciation let her set to work and add health, grace and beauty and tasteful dressing to her attractions.

Then, indeed, will she be equipped to compel the attention of the world.

Little Editorials from the People

OUGHT TO INTEREST ALL BOSTON

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I highly appreciate your courtesy in publishing a synopsis of my letter to the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs concerning the great injury which will be wrought upon many of the property owners of the West End of Boston by the proposed construction of the elevated track. A copy of that letter was sent to each Boston paper, yet none, so far as known, but the AMERICAN published it or alluded to the matter of such vital importance (the means of subsistence, even, to many) to our people and to the city.
